REPUDIATES ROBY MURDER

CONVICT INVOLVED IN EXTORTION PLOT BY WRITING EXPERT

Admits, Then Denies
Charge; Confuses
Suter Case

ASHLAND, O., Jan. 16.—Although, repudiating a confession in which he allegedly told of slaying Dr. Harry G. Roby, Mansfield dentist, James (Jim) Newsome, convicted Lorain County Negro robber, today became further implicated in the extortion plot against a prominent Ashland family by the contents of a Cleveland handwriting expert.

Newsome, according to the allegations made to authorities here by S. E. Leslie, of a business school at Cleveland, was the writer of two letters to Mrs. T. W. Miller, wife of a millionaire rubber manufacturer, demanding $1,000 on a threat to kidnap her son, Parker, 8.

The Negro, brought here from the Ohio Penitentiary to testify in the trial of Dr. Ira R. Suter, Mansfield dentist, who had been charged with the extortion plot, allegedly admitted to Ashland police that he had written the two threatening notes, but later repudiated his statements.

The first definite implication of Newsome in the Miller extortion case came a few hours after he denied to Ashland authorities a confession he was said to have made to Warden Preston E. Thomas of the Ohio Penitentiary, admitting the Roby murder at Mansfield.

At first declaring the details of the alleged confession to be true when questioned by newspapermen, Newsome repudiated his statements in the purported confession later to Sheriff H. F. Waller of Ashland County.

Both the sheriff and Prosecutor G. B. Kabfleisch of Richland County, who was called in to hear Newsome's statements here, declared today that they did not believe Newsome was connected with the Roby murder in any way.

Sheriff Waller revealed that Newsome told him that he was discouraged over the prospect of serving a sentence for a Lorain County filling station robbery and that he would rather be "bumped off." He was said to have told the sheriff that he admitted the Roby murder so that he would get the death penalty.

In a statement given to police here after an examination of the two letters threatening the kidnapping of the Miller boy, Leslie said: "It is my unqualified opinion that the two questioned letters were written by James Newsome."

Leslie's contentions threw a surprise into the investigation, inasmuch as a noted Columbus handwriting expert previously maintained that Dr. Suter was the author of the notes.

Although Newsome was said to have admitted writing the letters, authorities investigating the extortion case refused to believe his statements on the theory that he was attempting to secure a lighter prison term through a guilty plea to extortion charges.

Meanwhile, preparations were underway today for the opening of the trial of Dr. Suter next week. It is scheduled to start Thursday, and Newsome has been slated to testify for the defense.

TWO TROOPERS PLANE VICTIMS

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 16.—A fatal airplane crash today had claimed the lives of the hero of the Rough Riders of Troop D, state police, Lieutenant Tremain M. Hughes and his companion Corporal Theophilus Gaines, of the troopers.

The flyers at twilight last night crashed between Cazenovia and Peterboro. The state's plane in which they were enroute from Batavia to Sidney burst into flames when it hit the ground.

Investigators today said indications were a wing of the plane was torn off by tree branches when, flying low in a fog, the aviators tried for a forced landing.

HEIRESS GLAD TO RETURN TO PARENTS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Mae Stein, 15, daughter of a wealthy Cleveland family, was with her parents again today after a try at "going it alone."

The young girl who disappeared from her Shaker Heights home, fashionable residential district of Cleveland, last December 4, had been working in a five and ten cent store here. She lost her job, however, and today when her parents found her, she was four weeks behind in her room rent and virtually destitute.

MRS. FORTESCUE AFTER ARREST

This is the first picture to arrive in the United States of Mrs. Granville Fortescue, prominent New York and Washington society woman, following her arrest at Honolulu in connection with the death of Joe Kahahawai, one of the five Hawaiian youths charged with kidnapping and attacking Mrs. Fortescue's daughter, Mrs. Thallie Masiello. She is seen here looking out of a police patrol near Hanuma Bay, outside Honolulu, just after her capture by local police. Authorities declare they apprehended Mrs. Fortescue, Lieutenant Thomas Masiello, her son-in-law, and another navy man en route to dispose of the body in the ocean.

STATE'S ATTORNEY ACCUSED AS MEMBER OF BIG LIQUOR RING

Policeman Reveals County Official Is Conspirator

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Accused in court of having led a Jekyll-Hyde existence by enforcing the law during the day and violating it at night, State's Attorney Vincent Bell, of Whiteside County, today faced possible liquor conspiracy charges.

The astounding accusation against the state's attorney created a sensation in Federal Judge Walter Lindley's court during the $12,000,000 midwest liquor conspiracy trial. One of the defendants, called to the stand as a prosecution witness, named Bell as a member of the gigantic liquor ring.

The witness, Clarence "Sonny" Ebsen, an Elgin motorcycle officer, who admittedly ran liquor, declared Bell put him in jail because he "knew too much." Ebsen said he was falsely accused of murder and later Bell smuggled him out of the Whiteside County jail in order to evade a federal writ calling for Ebsen's testimony in the investigation of the liquor organization.

A second time, Ebsen testified, he was secretly released from the county jail by Mike Blumberg, an asserted leader of the ring. Blumberg, according to the witness, unlocked the door of the jail and told Ebsen to "beat it."

As a consequence of Ebsen's testimony, Assistant United States District Attorney Daniel Anderson, who is prosecuting the liquor case, announced he will immediately seek the indictment of the Whiteside County state's attorney on conspiracy charges.

FLYERS KILLED AS GAS TANK EXPLODES

MADRID, Jan. 16.—Two airplane mechanics were killed and five soldiers were seriously injured today when a fuel tank explosion occurred aboard a Dornier seaplane in which they were taking off. Flames leaped from the gasoline tanks, badly damaging the plane. It was bound for Melilla and Malaga.

Fresh Levee Breaks Per- mit Huge Area To Be Inundated

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 16. A vast section of the Mississippi delta region was swept by surging flood waters today, endangering the lives of thousands of persons.

Fresh breaks in levees sent additional avalanches of water over the countryside as the "father of waters" and many of his tributaries continued to rise.

The newest break was in the Patterson bayou levee, eight miles south of Charleston, Miss., where a wall of water fifteen feet high hurled through a giant gap in the dam.

Having already inundated some 100,000 acres, the deluge was characterized by pioneer residents as the worst in the history of the region. A new levee break was expected today one mile south of Charleston where the dam was rapidly crumbling before the force of the rising water. This break would inundate an additional 50,000 acres.

Rescue work, meanwhile, continued apace in the stricken Mississippi counties of Tallahatche, Sunflower and Leflore whose lowlands were swept by an eight-foot layer of water rushing through a break in the main levee of the Tallahatche River. Red Cross and flood commission workers were laboring feverishly to evacuate some 5,000 inhabitants of this region from the flooded area. Boats of all description were pressed into service.

The vicinity of Swan Lake also suffered from the floods depredation when an eight-foot water wall thundered through a fresh break in the Grassy Lake Levee. At Greenwood, Miss., the Yalobusha River overflowed its banks and water raged through the streets of the town. Thousands of acres of the rich farming country in that section was inundated.

FIGHT PHONE RATES

URBANA, O., Jan. 16.—Opposition to prevailing telephone rates in this section increased today as residents of this city and farmers in six townships of Champaign organized to force a reduction. The rural rate of $2 and business charge of $3 monthly was characterized as "excessive."

PEN WARDEN ADMITS AND DEFENDS STOOL PIGEON OPERATION

Declares System Has Served To Prevent
Much Trouble

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 16.—"Stool pigeon" methods of handling Ohio Penitentiary prisoners, charged by long-term "bad men" Thursday during the state senate's prison investigation, were both admitted and defended by Warden Preston E. Thomas today in an interview with International News Service.

Exhibiting knives, clubs, blackjacks and other weapons said to have been taken from prisoners after the receipt of "tips" from fellow convicts, the warden denied that the practice constituted "snitching," and likened it to modern police detection.

Although they may be called "tattlers," or "rats," by prisoners whom they have helped to trap, they have averted many serious flare-ups behind the walls, Thomas declared.

Riots, escapes, explosions and fights have been prevented by the operation of his "grapevine," which, for the most part, is the result of voluntary reports, either verbal or written, according to the warden.

To ferret out suspected plots, prisoners have been sent into solitary confinement, supposedly as a penalty for an infraction of the prison code, to spy on the supposed trouble-makers, the warden admitted.

Notes have reached him by the hundred, some sent urgently by a prison guard, and many of them unsigned, Thomas related. A "stool pigeon," he said, first notified him of plans for the post-fire riot at the prison in April, 1930.

Once recently, while he was walking through the prison yard, a convict, eyes to the front, went swiftly past him, the warden said, imparting this message through the corner of his mouth:

"They're cutting out through the north wall, warden."

Another time, during the night, a guard brought out a note which said:

"If you want to avoid trouble, shake down . . . for a knife because he is going to kill . . ."

Guards searched the prisoner named and discovered a dagger hidden in his clothing, Thomas stated. The so-called "stool pigeons," the warden said, the term is wrong—are to be found even in the "honorary camp."

The most trusted of trustees sometimes come to him and tell him of infractions by the men with whom they are imprisoned.

Another valuable "stool pigeon" tip was received in September, 1929, when prisoners planned to disarm guards during a Labor Day observance and make their escape.

Receiving the word, the warden himself disarmed the guards, but had police stationed outside. Prisoners called off their revolt. Since that day the majority of the prison guards, all but the "emergency" have not carried clubs, although they are allowed clubs for emergency purposes.

Thomas insists that "tattling" in this sense is not unethical. "I tell the prisoners," he said, "that it is your duty to tell anything that might be dangerous to you, or reflect upon you." Citizens outside do the same for the police.

FARMER DROWNS

BECKETT, O., Jan. 16.—Funeral services were being arranged today for Alvah Cooper, 45-year-old farmer, who was drowned yesterday when the bottom fell out of his boat on the Muskingum River. A passing train smothered his cries for help. His body was recovered by firemen.

FIRE IS PROBED

DRESDEN, O., Jan. 16.—Muskingum County authorities today investigated a $2,000 fire, believed to have been of an incendiary origin, which destroyed the Strauble Pharmacy here.

ADVERTISING NECESSARY TO DEFEAT SLUMP IN BUSINESS

"It is certain that advertising has a very important place in counteracting the business slump."

So says C. S. Clark, Chicago, official of the National Restaurant Association, speaking before the Dayton Advertising Club this week.

"Bad times can only be overcome by the stimulation of a buying impulse," Clark said. "That can be done best by advertising, for that is its true economic function. Buyers are made, not born, and there are plenty potential buyers with sufficient power to bring us back to normal quickly."

"Remove fear from people's minds and the slacker dollar will again go to work," the speaker continued. "Instill courage into the minds of the people and business will soon become normal. Many industries have been successful in beating the slump in business through keen, well-planned publicity, the courageous exploitation of new products, new devices to meet swiftly changing demands of customers and the better training of personnel."

"Give Americans something new and we will soon end the business depression. The manufacturer must manufacture new products, improved products, new styles and packages to advertise to the public. Then the public will respond by buying the new and improved things."

Breaks in the main levee of the Tallahatche river near Glendora, Miss., have inundated additional thousands of acres of rich plantation lands and sent hundreds of families scurrying for safety before the wrath of an eight-foot wall of water. This photo shows a street scene in Webb, Miss., following a disastrous break in the levee six miles to the north of the town.

BRISK BUSINESS AT AUTO SHOW RESULTS IN GREAT OPTIMISM

Sales Best In Five Years;
Upturn Is Seen
By Salesmen

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Brisk business at the thirty-second annual national automobile show, which will close tonight after a week's run, has so encouraged exhibitors, manufacturers and salesmen that they predicted on all sides today that 1932 will be a "good year."

It's an old axiom among automobile men that the salesmen are "the first to kick" when trade is poor. But this year, at their big show where the 1932 styles in cars were exhibited, they haven't complained. In fact, they're wearing wide, expansive smiles.

The attendance was fine, much better than a year ago. Sales at the show this week have averaged 25 per cent above last year. That's something with which to conjure. That's why the salesmen at the show said maybe there was something to that oft-repeated assertion that the "turn" toward better business is just around the corner.

But holding the statistical expert at the show, International News Service learned that the exhibitors were unanimous in reporting an increase in retail sales over last year's show. The average increases were 25 per cent. A number of exhibitors reported increases as high as 50 per cent over last year. Three exhibitors reported they made sales on the opening day, whereas on the opening day last year they didn't sell a car.

One sales manager said: "This show brought out the largest array of potential buyers of any show in the last five years."

The situation is indicative of a good replacement market, say the automobile men. Some of the cars appraised were models dating back as far as 1924. Most of these old machines will, of course, be scrapped and replaced by new cars. The accessories dealers reported that their trade was brisk, too.

R. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors in charge of sales, recommended to dealers and salesmen they should estimate the number of cars they expected to sell this year and to do their utmost to sell 70 per cent of that number by August. The bulk of the 1932 sales, he predicted, will be made in the spring and early in the summer.

TREASURY BALANCE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Treasury balance as of Jan. 14, $375,233,412.78; expenditures, $8,997,440.74; customs receipts, $14,118,745.95.

JAPAN AGREES TO KEEP "OPEN DOOR" POLICY

TOKYO, Jan. 16.—Japan today replied to the American note on Manchuria, declaring she would do all in her power to maintain the "open door" policy in China and stating she entertained no territorial ambitions in Manchuria.

She added, however, that a changed situation in China has necessitated a new conception of how to carry out the "open door" policy.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa made public the reply as he delivered it to American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes for dispatch to Washington.

In regard to the references to the Kellogg pact and the nine-power treaty made in American Secretary of State Stimson's formal protest, the statement declared the United States may rely upon Japan to fulfill her obligations under these pacts insofar as the legality of the treaty rights of the United States is concerned.

zawa made public the reply as he delivered it to American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes for dispatch to Washington.

After having tantalized the good citizens with balmy breezes of springtime, the weather began taking a nose-dive in Ohio today, giving shape to the winter season. Temperatures, which in the last few days have set new heat records, ranging in the 60's, for this time of the year, slid downward and weather bureau officials predicted they would sink as low as 28 and 30 degrees.

Today's outlook is "fair and colder," according to the weatherman.

JOSEPH W. FIGHTER IS BI-CENTENNIAL SPEAKER FOR XENIA

Educator Will Give Address At Program
February 22

Joseph W. Fighter, assistant director of education of Ohio, a state lecturer for the Grange and former superintendent of schools in Butler County, will be principal speaker at the George Washington Bi-Centennial commemoration program, sponsored by Foody Post, American Legion here February 22.

This announcement is made by Paul Fuller, chairman of the sub-committee in charge of the evening program, other members of which are School Superintendent Louis Hamerle, Paul Halder, commandant of the American Legion and Captain H. L. Hays of the O. S. and S. O. Home.

The full program has not been definitely arranged but it is known that there will be a band concert by the O. S. and S. O. Home Band and that prominent local men will take part. The entire observance will center about the George Washington Bi-Centennial.

Complete observance of the bi-centennial has been assumed here by the general Legion committee in charge with many sub-committees arranging various details.

There will be an observance at the O. S. and S. O. Home in the morning. An American Legion—George Washington Bi-Centennial edition of The Gazette will be published and will be distributed through arrangement with American Legion posts throughout this section.

No official observance has been planned for the afternoon hours but it is possible that in arranging final details of the program that some sort of brief ceremony will be held. In the evening the official Legion sponsored program will be carried out.

The complete observance planned for the year from February 22 to November 25 is under the direction of D. H. C. Messenger, chairman of the American Legion.

Similar observances and programs will be carried out during 1932 in every city and state in the nation through the national George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission and various state committees. Forty-four states, including Ohio, have endorsed the project and various legislatures have appropriated sums of money for carrying on the project during the year.

ACQUITTED SLAYER WILL BE EXAMINED REGARDING SANITY

War Veteran Freed Of
Charge Of Killing
Idiot Infant

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 16.—James Stenhouse, British war veteran and "mercy killer" of his 2-year-old son, who was absolved of the consequences for his deed by the grand jury which refused to indict him, will be examined for his sanity.

He may be suffering from the same ailment that made the life of his 2-year-old son, Oscar David, a burden, inflammation of the brain. If he is found to be so, he will be placed in an asylum, not for punishment but for the safety of himself and the community.

Stenhouse killed his baby son one night in September, 1928, according to his confession, to Sheriff James A. Stevens, which reads like a horror chapter out of Poe.

The child was a congenital idiot. His little inflamed brain made his baby life one of unrelieved torture. He wailed unceasingly, long, shrill wails that pierced the heart of his mother. For two years, Stenhouse said, he stood the constant pounding of that weird wail. And then he decided that he would end the baby's sufferings and, at the same time, save his wife's life. There were four other children. He thought of them, too, of the sleep they were losing and of the shame that would attend them all their lives as the brothers and sisters of an idiot.

The man confessed, Stevens said, that his wife was ill at the time he committed the deed, in September, 1928, and that he feared his son's brain weakness would cause his wife's death.

Stenhouse had purchased the chloroform two weeks before he administered it to the baby, he was said to have admitted. He returned home in an intoxicated condition one night, Stevens was informed, and found the child in a stupor. He obtained the chloroform and saturated a cloth which he held to the child's nostrils until he stopped breathing.

Fear that he would be found out, and to clear his conscience prompted Stenhouse to go to the sheriff last Saturday and admit the crime, he said. Only two other persons knew of it before then, his wife and one of his children, Ellen, 13.

KILLED WHEN PLANE STRIKES CHIMNEY

STONINGTON, Conn., Jan. 16.—Clemson M. Parker, 32, Newport, N. H., died today from injuries received when a plane in which he was flying with two companions hit the chimney of a house here and crashed to the ground.

The plane piloted by Glenn Parker, 22, Johnston, Vt., who owned it, was flying low in a heavy fog, while Parker tried to make an emergency landing.

Earl Johnson, 22, Peterboro, N. H., the other occupant of the plane, and Glenn Parker were seriously hurt in the accident.

INFORMATION SECURED FROM TAPPED WIRES

Gangland Informed On Operations Of
Racket Bureau

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—An amazing system of espionage operated by organized gangsters came to light today.

Involving the tapping of telephone wires and other methods of stealing information, the activities of this spy system were concentrated particularly on the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office. Its object was to secretly obtain confidential information on the basis of which the underworld could act against its enemies.

The state's attorney's office today launched a searching investigation of the underworld spy system, seeking to apprehend those who organized and headed it. The officials also sought to ascertain whether information obtained from the racket bureau by subterranean means could have led to numerous recent gang assassinations, notably the murder Monday night of Benjamin Rosenberg, cleaning and dyeing company executive.

Admitting their discovery that the telephone lines of the racket bureau had been tapped, members of the state's attorney's staff today declared they had learned that the gangland spies have carried on their secret work in bold proximity to official offices.

Headquarters of the espionage system, it was announced, were established in the same downtown office building which houses the offices of the racket bureau. The racket bureau rooms are located on the fifteenth floor of the building, while the underworld spies were quartered on the fourteenth and the tenth floor.

Altogether the underworld spies occupied ten suites in the building, it was indicated by evidence already gleaned by investigators. Posing as racing news associations, the espionage system maintained a constant surveillance over the comings and goings of state's attorney's investigators and by tapping wires recorded confidential conversations between racket bureau officials and prospective witnesses.

C. A. Dow, representing a receivership which operates the office building, revealed that the occupants of the "Racing News Association" quarters vanished mysteriously when the operators of the building began an inquiry into the character of their business.

Dow was cooperating with the state's attorney in the investigation of the underworld spy system. Rosenberg, a leader in the fight of independent cleaners against racketeers who seek to dominate the industry, was to have been the state's star witness against two men accused of conspiring to wreck independent firms. He had had numerous conversations, telephone and personal, with attaches of the racket bureau before he was shot and killed.

JAPS TO CLASH WITH SOVIETS

Observer Says War
Seems Inevitable

PEIPING, Jan. 16.—Japanese forces will clash with those of Soviet Russia in North Manchuria within three months, an American observer returning from Harbin declared today.

The American said the general belief prevailed there that an outbreak of hostilities was inevitable, and that neither Japanese nor Russians attempted to conceal their mutual preparations for a conflict.

The Soviet government particularly has prepared for fighting, he reported, having mobilized its officers of the class of 1896, and having notified others to hold themselves in constant readiness.

In the meantime minor clashes between Red Russians and White Russians occurred regularly, and the observer said large scale operations were expected to begin any day.

Japan's chief step against Russia to date was to announce its firm intention of suppressing every Communist movement among the Chinese of north Manchuria.

THE RIGHT ANSWER

"Yes, Dot, just the stove I wanted. We needed a new stove for the garage—and we didn't want to spend much money. We advertised in the Classified Columns of THE EVENING GAZETTE and within two days had a fine stove. Why don't you try classified for that chair you wanted for the children's play room? Just call 111."

REPUDIATES ROBY MURDER

CONVICT INVOLVED IN EXTORTION PLOT BY WRITING EXPERT

Admits, Then Denies
Charge; Confuses
Suter Case

ASHLAND, O., Jan. 16.—Although, repudiating a confession in which he allegedly told of slaying Dr. Harry G. Roby, Mansfield dentist, James (Jim) Newsome, convicted Lorain County Negro robber, today became further implicated in the extortion plot against a prominent Ashland family by the contents of a Cleveland handwriting expert.

Newsome, according to the allegations made to authorities here by S. E. Leslie, of a business school at Cleveland, was the writer of two letters to Mrs. T. W. Miller, wife of a millionaire rubber manufacturer, demanding $1,000 on a threat to kidnap her son, Parker, 8.

The Negro, brought here from the Ohio Penitentiary to testify in the trial of Dr. Ira R. Suter, Mansfield dentist, who had been charged with the extortion plot, allegedly admitted to Ashland police that he had written the two threatening notes, but later repudiated his statements.

The first definite implication of Newsome in the Miller extortion case came a few hours after he denied to Ashland authorities a confession he was said to have made to Warden Preston E. Thomas of the Ohio Penitentiary, admitting the Roby murder at Mansfield.

At first declaring the details of the alleged confession to be true when questioned by newspaper men, Newsome repudiated his statements in the purported confession later to Sheriff H. F. Walcott of Ashland County.

Both the sheriff and Prosecutor G. B. Kabisch of Richland County, who was called in to hear Newsome's statements here, declared today that they did not believe Newsome was connected with the Roby murder in any way.

Sheriff Walcott revealed that Newsome told him that he was discouraged over the prospect of serving a sentence for a Lorain County filling station robbery and that he would rather be "bumped off." He was said to have told the sheriff that he admitted the Roby murder so that he would get the death penalty.

In a statement given to police here after an examination of the two letters threatening the kidnapping of the Miller boy, Leslie said: "It is my unqualified opinion that the two questioned letters were written by James Newsome."

Leslie's contentions threw a surprise into the investigation, inasmuch as a noted Columbus handwriting expert previously maintained that Dr. Suter was the author of the notes.

Although Newsome was said to have admitted writing the letters, authorities investigating the extortion case refused to believe his statements on the theory that he was attempting to secure a lighter prison term through a guilty plea to extortion charges.

Meanwhile, preparations were underway today for the opening of the trial of Dr. Suter next week. It is scheduled to start Thursday, and Newsome has been slated to testify for the defense.

"It is certain that advertising has a very important place in counteracting the business slump."

So says C. S. Clark, Chicago, official of the National Restaurant Association, speaking before the Dayton Advertising Club this week.

"Bad times can only be overcome by the stimulation of a buying impulse," Clark said. "That can be done best by advertising, for that is its true economic function. Buyers are made, not born, and there are plenty potential buyers with sufficient power to bring us back to normal quickly."

"Remove fear from people's minds and the slacker dollar will again go to work," the speaker continued. "Instill courage into the minds of the people and business will soon become normal. Many industries have been successful in beating the slump in business through keen, well-planned publicity, the courageous exploitation of new products, new devices to meet swiftly changing demands of customers and the better training of personnel."

"Give Americans something new and we will soon see the business depression. The manufacturer must manufacture new products, improved products, new styles and packages to advertise to the public. Then the public will respond by buying the new and improved things."

Breaks in the main levee of the Tallahatchie river near Glendora, Miss., have inundated additional thousands of acres of rich plantation lands and sent hundreds of families scurrying for safety before the wrath of an eight-foot wall of water. BRISK BUSINESS AT AUTO SHOW RESULTS IN GREAT OPTIMISM

Sales Best In Five Years;
Upturn Is Seen
By Salesmen

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Brisk business at the thirty-second annual national automobile show, which will close tonight after a week's run, has so encouraged exhibitors, manufacturers and salesmen that they predicted on all sides today that 1932 will be a "good year."

It's an old axiom among automobile men that the salesmen are "the first to kick" when trade is poor. But this year, at their big show where the 1932 styles in cars were exhibited, they haven't complained. In fact, they're wearing wide, expansive smiles.

The attendance was fine, much better than a year ago. Sales at the show this week have averaged 25 per cent above last year. That's something with which to conjure. That's why the salesmen at the show said maybe there was something to that oft-repeated assertion that the "turn" toward better business is just around the corner.

Buttressing the statistical expert at the show, International News Service learned that the exhibitors were unanimous in reporting an increase in retail sales over last year's show. The average increases were 25 per cent. A number of exhibitors reported increases as high as 50 per cent over last year. Three exhibitors reported they made sales on the opening day, whereas on the opening day last year they didn't sell a car.

"This show brought out the largest array of potential buyers of any show in the last five years," the situation is indicative of a good replacement market, say the automobile men. Some of the cars appraised were models dating back as far as 1924. Most of these old machines will, of course, be scrapped and replaced by new cars.

The accessories were brisk, too. H. H. Grant, vice president of General Motors in charge of sales, recommended to dealers and salesmen they should estimate the number of cars they expected to sell this year and to do their utmost to sell 70 per cent of that number by August. The bulk of the 1932 sales, he predicted, will be made in the spring and early in the summer.

TREASURY BALANCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Treasury balance as of Jan. 14, $375,232,412.78; expenditures, $8,097,440.74; customs receipts, $14,118,745.98.

JAPAN AGREES TO KEEP "OPEN DOOR" POLICY

TOKYO, Jan. 16.—Japan today replied to the American note on Manchuria, declaring she would do all in her power to maintain the "open door" policy in China and stating she entertained no territorial ambitions in Manchuria.

She added, however, that a changed situation in China has necessitated a new conception of how to carry out the "open door" policy.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa made public the reply as he delivered it to American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes for dispatch to Washington.

In regard to the reference to the Kellogg pact and the nine-power treaty made in American Secretary of State Stimson's formal protest, the statement declared the United States may rely upon Japan to fulfill her obligations under these pacts insofar as the legality of the treaty rights of the United States is concerned.

Headquarters of the espionage system, it was announced, were established in the same downtown office building which houses the offices of the racket bureau. The racket bureau rooms are located on the fifteenth floor of the building, while the underworld spies were quartered on the fourteenth and the tenth floor.

Altogether the underworld spies occupied ten suites in the building. It was indicated by evidence already gleaned by investigators. Posing as racing news associations, the espionage system maintained a constant surveillance over the comings and goings of state's attorney's investigators and by tapping wires recorded confidential conversations between racket bureau officials and prospective witnesses.

C. A. Dow, representing a receiver-ship which operates the office building, revealed that the occupants of the "Racing News Association" quarters vanished mysteriously when the operators of the building began an inquiry into the character of their business. Dow was cooperating with the state's attorney in the investigation of the underworld spy system.

Rosenberg, a leader in the fight of independent cleaners against racketeers who seek to dominate the industry, was to have been the state's star witness against two men accused of conspiring to wreck independent firms. He had had numerous conversations, telephone and personal, with attaches of the racket bureau before he was shot and killed.

Stenhouse killed his baby son one night in September, 1928, according to his confession, to Sheriff James A. Stevens, which reads like a horror chapter out of Poe. The child was a congenital idiot. His little inflamed brain made his baby life one of unrelieved torture. He wailed unceasingly, long, shrill wails that pierced the heart of his mother. For two years, Stenhouse said, he stood the constant pounding of that weird wail. And then he decided that he would end the baby's sufferings and, at the same time, save his wife's life. There were four other children. He thought of them, too, of the sleep they were losing and of the shame that would attend them all their lives as the brothers and sisters of an idiot.

The man confessed, Stevens said, that his wife was ill at the time he committed the deed. In September, 1928, and that he feared his son's brain weakness would cause his wife's death.

Stenhouse had purchased the chloroform two weeks before he administered it to the baby, he was said to have admitted. He returned home in an intoxicated condition one night, Stevens was informed, and found the child in a stupor. He obtained the chloroform and saturated a cloth which he held to the child's nostrils until he stopped breathing.

Fear that he would be found out, and to clear his conscience prompted Stenhouse to go to the sheriff last Saturday and admit the crime, he said. Only two other persons knew of it before then, his wife and one of his children, Ellen, 13.

Complete observance of the centennial has been assured here by the general Legion committee in charge with many sub-committees arranging various details.

There will be an observance at the O. S. and S. O. Home in the morning. An American Legion—George Washington Bi-Centennial edition of The Gazette will be published and will be distributed through arrangement with American Legion posts throughout this section.

No official observance has been planned for the afternoon hours but it is possible that in arranging final details of the program that some sort of brief ceremony will be held in the evening the official Legion, sponsored program will be carried out.

The complete observance planned for this year from February 22 to November 25 is under the direction of D. H. C. Messenger, chairman of the American Legion.

Similar observances and programs will be carried out during 1932 in every city and state in the nation through the national George Washington Bi-Centennial Commission and various state committees. Forty-four states, including Ohio, have endorsed the project and various legislatures have appropriated sums of money for carrying on the project during the year.

ACQUITTED SLAYER WILL BE EXAMINED REGARDING SANITY

War Veteran Freed Of
Charge Of Killing
Idiot Infant

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 16.—James Stenhouse, British war veteran and "mercy killer" of his 2-year-old son, who was absolved of the consequences for his deed by the grand jury which refused to indict him, will be examined for his sanity.

He may be suffering from the same ailment that made the life of his 2-year-old son, Oscar David, a burden, inflammation of the brain. If he is found to be so, he will be placed in an asylum, not for punishment but for the safety of himself and the community.

Stenhouse killed his baby son one night in September, 1928, according to his confession, to Sheriff James A. Stevens, which reads like a horror chapter out of Poe. The child was a congenital idiot. INFORMATION SECURED FROM TAPPED WIRES

Operations Of

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—An amazing system of espionage operated by organized gangsters came to light today.

Involving the tapping of telephone wires and other methods of stealing information, the activities of this spy system were concentrated particularly on the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office. Its object was to secretly obtain confidential information on the basis of which the underworld could act against its enemies.

The state's attorney's office today launched a searching investigation of the underworld spy system, seeking to apprehend those who organized and headed it. The officials also sought to ascertain whether information obtained from the racket bureau by subterranean means could have led to numerous recent gang assassinations, notably the murder Monday night of Benjamin Rosenberg, cleaning and dyeing company executive.

Admitting their discovery that the telephone lines of the racket bureau had been tapped, members of the state's attorney's staff today declared they had learned that the gangland spies have carried on their secret work in bold proximity to central offices.

Headquarters of the espionage system, it was announced, were established in the same downtown office building which houses the offices of the racket bureau. The racket bureau rooms are located on the fifteenth floor of the building, while the underworld spies were quartered on the fourteenth and the tenth floor.

Champions Waiting Gun for Winter Olympics

All set for the Winter sports events of the Olympic Games are the devoted sons and daughters of Father Winter, who will compete at Lake Placid, New York, in the contests to decide the world championships. Outstanding among them are Sigmund Ruud, of Norway, who holds the world's ski jump record of 267 feet; Irving Jaffee, of New York, Olympic skating champion at 10,000 metres, and Gillis Graftstrom, of Sweden, twice Olympic figure skating champion. The famed Sonja Henie, of Germany, women's Olympic figure skating queen, will be on hand to defend her title. One who is expected to add to Uncle Sam's point score is Jack Shea, of Dartmouth, new intercollegiate middle distance skating champion. There was a time when the European entries excelled in the Winter events, but that is a thing of the past. Uncle Sam's nephews and nieces, competing on home grounds, are this year expected to be way up front in the final point score. Final trials are being staged and the invaders are sure to meet real competition when the events get under way at the New York resort next month.

HONORED AT FAREWELL

RECEPTION FRIDAY EVENING.
Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hull, E. Market St., who are leaving within a few days for Detroit, Mich., to reside, were honored at a delightful farewell party given by the congregation of the First M. E. Church in the lecture room of the church Friday evening. During the two years they have resided in Xenia Mrs. Hull has been director of the adult, intermediate and junior choirs of the church and considerable regret was expressed at her removal from Xenia.

Arrangements for the party were in charge of the Ladies Aid Society, under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Faulkner, president, who presided at toastmaster's.

Charles A. Bone, superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke briefly in which he thanked Mrs. Hull for her services to the Sunday School. Mr. Karl R. Babb, representing the congregation, also spoke and presented Mrs. Hull with a gold coin. Mrs. Fred Coy, representing the Glensiders' Class, of which Mrs. Hull was a member, presented Mrs. Hull with a box of handkerchiefs after a short talk. Mrs. Faulkner also spoke. Mrs. Hull graciously responded to each of the talks and sang two solos. The adult choir then sang two selections under the direction of Mrs. Hull, and Mrs. R. C. Ledbetter entertained the guests with two readings.

The guests were then invited to the church and refreshments at tables attractively decorated with candles and ivy.

PARENTS TO BLAME

To the Editor:

Adults, only too often, go to extremes in the rearing of children. Parents may be of the excessively pampering type, only to provide the child with anything it happens to ask for in order to keep it from crying, or whining.

On the other hand the mother or father, or both, may be of the stern, Simon Legree type, too prone to slap or use harsh words when ever the child makes a natural effort to assert itself.

Both types of children come into adolescence with terrible handicaps, the first a pampered, unreluctant, creature not realizing the rights of others. The other child usually enters school with a fairly well developed inferiority complex. He early senses his inadequacy.

His parents are responsible. Backwardness, forwardness, stubbornness, sulkeness, cruelty, lying, stealing, crying, biting the finger nails, inability to remain quiet, truancy, swearing, mental deficiency, malnutrition, sluggish bowel action all come under the complete mental hygiene survey.

Careful observation and study of these conditions in the young child, by the parent, teacher and family physician, will make it less needed in the adult. It will help to stop the awful flow into the sea of "misfits."

The Greene County Law Library Association, which always in past years had a small annual income, may eventually have more money than it knows how to use.

This possibility is foreseen as a result of a recent opinion of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, on the basis of which a finding for recovery of $973.44 in favor of the law library of the county is contained in a report of the annual examination of the Xenia Municipal Court, made public Friday.

The interpretation placed on the law in the attorney general's opinion, city officials learned from state examiners, changes the entire distribution system pertaining to fines collected in state Crabbie act cases in Municipal Courts over Ohio. The ruling was given last October 16.

Acting upon the legal ruling, State Examiner Frank B. Thomas, and his assistant Charles T. Rupert, who made an audit of the city books covering the period from September 11, 1930, to October 31, 1931, incorporated in their report a summary distribution of fines collected in state liquor cases in the Xenia Municipal Court, not only for the period of the examination but for the full period the court has been in operation.

The local court began to function January 1, 1930. The report consequently includes a total finding for recovery against Greene County of $1,487.19, representing fines collected in state cases and "incorrectly distributed" to the county treasury from January 1, 1930 to November 1, 1931.

The findings include $973.44 in favor of the county law library, $267.50 in favor of the city of Xenia and $246.25 in favor of the state treasury.

City officials say that formerly 85 per cent of the fines collected by the court in state cases were paid to the county treasury and 15 per cent to the law library. Now it appears the law library is to inherit virtually all the fines collected.

It is also explained that the county assumes $450 of the annual salary paid the judge of the court. Part of this had been refunded to the county out of court revenues each year, in installments of $37.50 in months when there were no Crabbie act cases in court. Now it is learned that under the attorney general's opinion this money does not revert to any specific treasury, hence the finding of $267.50 in favor of the city of Xenia.

The new plan of distribution of local court fines was put into execution last November 1 in compliance with the order of the state examiner, the law library receiving $413.50 in November and $52 in December.

It is considered unlikely that the $973.44 paid into the county treasury up until November 1, for which a finding for recovery was made, will be collected from the county.

Hereafter, however, the law library stands to have plenty of money at its disposal, and a spokesman for the law association said the unexpected increases in revenue will be put to good use.

The law library room is located on the second floor of the Court House and the association is cramped for space, he said. Considerable money is spent each year to keep the reference library up to date.

The library no longer contains reference books of the laws of about thirty-five states, available to all county officials, but additional shelving space is needed and it may be that another room will be fitted up on the third floor. Up until the present lack of funds has prevented any enlargement of the library.

Findings for recovery listed in the report of the state examination total only $1,511.11, an amount which includes the $1,487.19 finding against the county treasury.

XENIANS MAKE GIFT

FOR NEW CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hayes Hamilton of Xenia, donated a handsome holy water font for the new St. Theresa Church at Hamilton, Bermuda, which was dedicated to the Little Flower at opening services last Sunday.

Two masses featured the dedication exercises, which included the blessing of the church, the blessing of the altar and services in the evening commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the pastor, the Rev. J. D. Comeau, and a reception for the pastor.

The St. Theresa church which was the gift of the Xenians stands in the front of the church near a proposed site for a shrine of the Little Flower. It was designed and executed by Malcolia de Sesto Fiorentino near Florence, Italy. Mr. Hamilton is connected with the Princess Hotel at Hamilton and spends his winters there.

The play "Light House Nan" will be staged in East High School by East High students under the patronage of the B. Y. P. U. and under the direction of Mrs. Mae Miles. This is a sea coast drama vibrating with startling incidents and heart gripping situations relieved only by the cleanness of comedy. The cast is superb and composes some of the best local talent.

The players from Wilberforce will produce an interesting drama, under the patronage of the pastor at the Xenia Opera House, Friday, February 5th. Curtain at 8 o'clock. A prize of five dollars in gold will be given the person selling the highest number of tickets over 100 and a second prize of $2.50 will be given the next highest seller. In event no person sells 100 tickets $2.50 will be given the highest ticket seller.

Mrs. Rowena Price, formerly of Ohio but now engaged in mission work in New Mexico will sing some songs in Spanish at the close of the play.

HONORED AT FAREWELL

RECEPTION FRIDAY EVENING.
Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hull, E. Market St., who are leaving within a few days for Detroit, Mich., to reside, were honored at a delightful farewell party given by the congregation of the First M. E. Church in the lecture room of the church Friday evening. During the two years they have resided in Xenia Mrs. Hull has been director of the adult, intermediate and junior choirs of the church and considerable regret was expressed at her removal from Xenia.

Arrangements for the party were in charge of the Ladies Aid Society under the direction of Mrs. A. E. Faulkner, president, who presided as toastmistress. Mrs. Charles A. Bone, superintendent of the Sunday School, spoke briefly in which he thanked Mrs. Hull for her services to the Sunday School. Mr. Karl R. Babb, representing the congregation, also spoke and presented Mrs. Hull with a gold coin. Mrs. Fred Coy, representing the Gleaners' Class, of which Mrs. Hull was a member, presented Mrs. Hull with a box of handkerchiefs after a short talk. Mrs. Faulkner also spoke. Mrs. Hull graciously responded to each of the talks and sang two solos. The adult choir then sang two selections under the direction of Mrs. Hull, and Mrs. R. C. Ledbetter entertained the guests with two readings.

The guests were then invited to the church basement and after served refreshments at tables attractively decorated with candles and ivy.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Timmons, Chillicothe, were recent guests of Mrs. Mae Dickenson, Grand Ave., fifth grade teacher at Bath Twp. School. Mr. William Howard has returned to Osborn from a business trip to Kansas City.

LAW LIBRARY TO BENEFIT FROM FINDING BY STATE EXAMINER

The Greene County Law Library Association, which always in past years had a small annual income, may eventually have more money than it knows how to use.

This possibility is foreseen as a result of a recent opinion of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, on the basis of which a finding for recovery of $973.44 in favor of the law library of the county is contained in a report of the annual examination of the Xenia Municipal Court, made public Friday.

The interpretation placed on the law in the attorney general's opinion, city officials learned from state examiners, changes the entire distribution system pertaining to fines collected in state Crabbie act cases in Municipal Courts over Ohio. The ruling was given last October 16.

Acting upon the legal ruling, State Examiner Frank R. Thomas, and his assistant Charles T. Rupert, who made an audit of the city books covering the period from September 11, 1930, to October 31, 1931, incorporated in their report a summary distribution of fines collected in state liquor cases in the Xenia Municipal Court, not only for the period of the examination but for the full period the court has been in operation.

The local court began to function January 1, 1930. The report consequently includes a total finding for recovery against Greene County of $1,487.19, representing fines collected in state cases and "incorrectly distributed" to the county treasury.

The findings include $973.44 in favor of the county law library, $267.50 in favor of the city of Xenia and $246.25 in favor of the state treasury.

City officials said that formerly 85 per cent of the fines collected by the court in state cases were paid to the county treasury and 15 per cent to the law library. Now it appears the law library is to inherit virtually all the fines collected.

It is also explained that the county assumes $450 of the annual salary paid the judge of the court. Part of this had been refunded to the county out of court revenues each year, in installments of $37.50 in months when there were no Crabbie act cases in court. Now it is learned that under the attorney general's opinion this money does not revert to any specific treasury, hence the finding of $267.50 in favor of the city of Xenia.

The new plan of distribution of local court fines was put into execution last November 1 in compliance with the order of the state examiner, the law library receiving $413.50 in November and $52 in December.

It is considered unlikely that the $973.44 paid into the county treasury up until November 1, for which a finding for recovery was made, will be collected from the county.

Hereafter, however, the law library stands to have plenty of money at its disposal, and a spokesman for the law association said the unexpected increase in revenue will be put to good use.

The law library room is located on the second floor of the Court House and the association is cramped for space, he said. Considerable money is spent each year to keep the reference library up to date.

The library now contains a reference books of the laws of about thirty-five states, available to all county officials, but additional shelving space is needed and it may be that another room will be fitted up on the third floor. Up until the present lack of funds has prevented any enlargement of the library.

Findings for recovery listed in the report of the state examination total only $1,611.11, amount which includes the $1,487.19 finding against the county treasury.

Findings for adjustment amounted to $933.96. All represent technical errors that have since been properly adjusted. Compliments for the various department heads and clerks are distributed freely by the examiners.

TO PROSECUTE PAIR FOR CHICKEN THEFT AFTER ARREST HERE

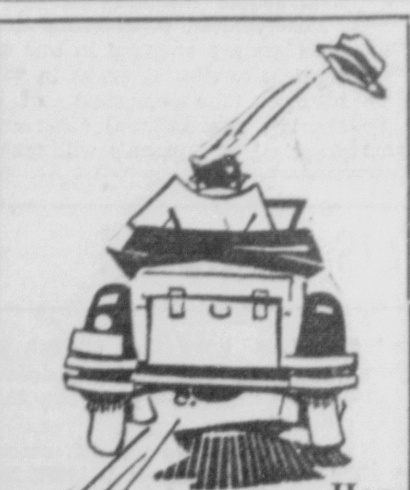

Henry Hopkins, 21, and Ernest Runkle, 32, suspected chicken thieves, were turned over by Sheriff John Baughn Friday night to authorities of Clark County, where the pair is expected to be prosecuted on burglary and larceny charges.

The suspects were released to Clark County after forty-five chickens, found in a raid Tuesday night on a farm east of Jamestown, on which Runkle is a tenant, were identified as stolen.

Sheriff Baughn disclosed that Mrs. Anna C. Kinley widow, residing on a farm two miles from South Charleston, on the Jamestown-South-Charleston Pike, identified the chickens as having been stolen from her hen house earlier in the evening last Tuesday. She had been saving the chickens, she said, in order to sell them later and pay her taxes.

Since the alleged theft occurred in Clark County, prosecution of Hopkins and Runkle will take place in that county, the sheriff announced.

Local juvenile court attaches were expected to take charge Saturday of three small children of Runkle by first wife. The three boys range from 4 to 12 years in age.

XENIANS MAKE GIFT FOR NEW CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. R. Hayes Hamilton of Xenia, donated a handsome holy water font for the new St. Theresa Church at Hamilton, Bermuda, which was dedicated to the Little Flower at opening services last Sunday.

Two masses featured the dedication exercises, which included the blessing of the church, the blessing of the altar and services in the evening commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the pastor, the Rev. J. D. Comeau, and a reception for the pastor.

The St. Theresa font which was the gift of the Xenians stands in the front of the church near a proposed site for a shrine of the Little Flower. It was designed and executed by Malcolia de Sesto Fiorentino near Florence, Italy. Mr. Hamilton is connected with the Princess Hotel at Hamilton and spends his winters there.

XENIAN HURT WHEN TWO AUTOS COLLIDE

Miss Helen Roundtree, 26, colored, Xenia, sustained a cut on the forehead when an auto in which she was a passenger, driven by Charles Roundtree, 26, colored, Xenia, was struck by another car at Dayton Friday.

The second auto was driven by Gabriel Lindsey, colored, 27, Bank St., Dayton, who was reported to have swerved into the Roundtree car in an attempt to avoid running down a boy. Lindsey was ordered to appear at the traffic bureau in Dayton Saturday morning to give a detailed report of the mishap.

Miss Roundtree was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital for treatment of her injuries.

ATTEND FORTY AND EIGHT GATHERING

Paul Fuller, Guy Snyder, and other members of Greene County Volunteer Forty and Eight Society, went to Columbus Saturday to attend a meeting of the Grand Vol.

Fuller is grand guard de la porte of the state organization and Snyder is chief de gare of the local organization.

The meeting will be in session Saturday and Sunday at the Desher-Wallace Hotel and the O. S. and S. O. Home Cadet Band will present a program at the meeting Sunday, it is announced.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Who is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the boldness of his face shall be changed.—Ecclesiastes, viii, 1.

RETIREES AT 91

Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes has resigned from the United States Supreme Court, at the age of nearly 91 years. Over 50 of those years have been given to distinguished public service. A graduate of Harvard College in the "war class" of 1861, Capt. Holmes enlisted in the 20th Massachusetts Infantry and was graduated from it with three wound stripes. Then he entered Harvard Law School and later engaged in private practice in Boston. A half century ago he was appointed an Associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and 17 years later became its Chief Justice. Thirty years ago he was appointed to the United States Supreme Court. The infirmities of age have at last forced his indomitable spirit to bow to the inevitable.

A Puritan by descent, son of a distinguished father, a member by right of birth of what that father had called "the Brahmin caste of New England," Justice Holmes might have been suspected of economic and social liberalism. As a matter of fact it was a doubt on this score which caused President Roosevelt to make extended inquiry before he appointed to the Supreme Court the man who promptly discovered himself as the most liberal of liberals. There could be no doubt as to Justice Holmes' independence of mind; for of all Puritan tenets none was held more firmly than freedom of individual thought. "If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other," Justice Holmes declared in a famous dissenting opinion, "it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought we hate."

A profound scholar, a rugged independent, who refused to exalt legal restrictions above freedom of the individual, Justice Holmes leaves behind him an impress on the Supreme Court that is not likely soon to be erased. The problem of finding a successor to him is not one of partisan politics or even of Liberalism vs. Conservatism: It is to find a man, if possible, who will approximate his intelligence, breadth of view, and love and understanding of his fellowmen.

Just how basically sound the farmer in the United States finds his position at the beginning of this year is indicated by a recent statement from the Federal Department of Agriculture. A preliminary estimate of production for 1931, by Mr. Nils A. Olsen, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, brightens the picture that less informed persons have drawn of the farming business.

Gross income on the farms decreased in 1931 to $6,920,000,000, or $2,380,000,000 less than in 1930, he estimated. But an equally important fact is that "the combined outturn of the principal crops was about 10 per cent greater. . . . There is abundant home-grown food on the tables and home-grown feed in the barns."

Farmers who owe large debts of course, can pay these only by selling their products at extremely depreciated prices. But they have an offsetting advantage over urban workers in that so many of their needs can be satisfied with the products of their farms. And, as Mr. Olsen says, it is remarkable how many of the necessities of living a farm can produce when the need requires. — Christian Science Monitor.

Moratorium Stopping Payments

By BARNETT R. BRICKNER

Rabbi, Euclid Avenue Temple, Cleveland

(Barnett R. Brickner was born in New York City in 1882. He is a graduate of Columbia university and Hebrew Union college, Cincinnati, O. He established the first Jewish Psychopathic hospital in Cincinnati and was director of Jewish social agencies in that city. In 1921 he went to Toronto, where he spent five years as a rabbi. He became rabbi of the Euclid Avenue Temple at Cleveland, O., in 1925.)

The twin Humpty-Dumpties of reparations and war debts have tumbled over.

In my judgment the Hoover moratorium put a stop to something that can never be put into motion again.

Peace is never possible while war debts and reparations endure. If the people of the United States and France, whose governments hold the pivotal position in the world's life, had recognized this when the World War was over and not saddled Germany with reparations, nor insisted on their "pound of flesh" through the payment of war debts, the world's present crisis might never have occurred.

It is, of course, understood that debts owed by foreign governments to private individuals, banks and corporations in this country must be kept sacred, but inter-governmental debts have always, and will be, conditional on political exigencies.

I believe that it will be in the best economic interest of this country that the war debt should not be paid, because it will open up markets for our exports.

We should take the position of setting up into business again a creditor who have been bankrupted, because we need him as an outlet for our production.

The liquidation of the war debt will not only be a good financial investment on our part, but we could insist that the only terms on which we will grant it would be the scaling down of armaments, and that the money released should go into the constructive economic endeavor.

It is folly to believe that reparations and war debts depend ultimately either upon the power of the creditor to collect, or upon the degree to which the debtor regards the debt as involving his honor.

When the French went into the Ruhr they learned something about the folly of trying to collect reparations.

No republican government that wishes to stay in power may advocate the payment of reparations, as the Bruening government under the influence of Hitler demonstrated recently. France must help America in fashioning world opinion in this regard.

Disarmament or any considerable reduction of armaments in Europe is out of the question until the peace treaty is adjusted.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK. — It seems the Culbertson-Lenz bridge tournament lasted a trifle too long to hold the fevered suspense of the early sessions. The finale didn't have the bang-up splash effect augured by ballyhoo at the beginning. Maybe such gladiatorial tilts need a quick and punky finish—say, in 50 or 75 rubbers—to achieve the ideal box office. It's curious, too, that none of the contract friends I know changed systems because of the outcome. In a great many homes auction is still played while contract is talked about.

AUTO SHOW A MAGNET

All the regular trains into New York carried additional sleeping and coach cars to take care of the auto show influx. The show itself offered numbers of strange and informing sidelights upon this tumultuous time. The top-hatted and bejeweled contingent was not so much in evidence this year, while the fabled man-in-the-street turned out in all his straits to see and tinker with gadgets and marvel and yearn.

More than that, he came, too, to buy. Automobiles for folk of moderate means are in unprecedented abundance this year. Incidentally, I could not help the feeling that the auto show was one of the most effective depression tonics yet found. There people could gaze upon, could touch, the shining toys which await them, if not now, then around that corner which had been mentioned so stressfully that it had become unreal.

Mournful gentlemen and ladies gazed and remembered high days.

STRAWS IN THE HURRICANE

The press agent for Greta Garbo, if she had one, managed her sojourn here with extraordinary skill. Prior to the star's arrival there was a flurry of rumors. She was here. She wasn't here. And so was her Aunt Hepatica. It was great fun. Before she left the papers' leg men were trailing her obsequiously, and the gossip writers were whispering about her on noisless, rapt machines.

She had been seen here and there. Her demeanor was charmed from day to day with the detail of a Babson report. There is no reason why the town should not have been entertained in this fashion, but many a star with just as much fame has arrived and departed with no more than a line and a thumbnail cut in the papers.

I'm wondering who handles La Garbo's "public relations," as Ivy Lee would say. He ought to have a raise.

NO ARMAMENT REDUCTION LOOKED FOR AT GENEVA BY NAVAL COMMITTEE HEAD

WASHINGTON. — Chairman Frederick Hale of the senate committee on naval affairs recently blurted out the real reason why so few folk, except incurable optimists, expect any genuine reduction in sea establishments to follow the international armament conference for which America's delegates are just leaving (Jan. 20), bound Geneva.

The party, if anyone needs reminding, consists of:

Republicans — Ex-Vice President Charles G. Dawes, retiring United States ambassador to England; Hugh S. Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium; President Mary Emma Woolley of Mount Holyoke college.

Democrats — Senator Claude A. Swanson of Virginia; Norman H. Davis, New York banker, who, as undersecretary of state toward the end of the Wilson regime, gave the war president much of his advice at Versailles, who subsequently participated prominently in post-war European financial readjustments, and consequently is entitled to his share of the credit for present conditions; who somehow missed being connected with the Hoover food administration, but was educated at Stanford anyway.

And about 30 assorted factotums — experts, secretaries, et cetera.

As Senator Hale expressed it, Uncle Sam is in a position to negotiate advantageously, with a view to an all-around cutting down of armaments, only when his own fleet is the strongest one afloat.

It will be recalled that, due to his wartime activities, this was precisely the position in which Uncle Samuel found himself during the Washington conference of 1921-22, when he proposed to scrap several hundred million dollars' worth of his newly-built ships, if the world's other leading naval powers would bind themselves to certain temporary limitations, which, being then without funds to exceed them, they would have to remain within, whether or no.

The readiness with which this offer was accepted was extremely gratifying to Uncle Sam.

Since then, however, Uncle Sam having fallen even farther back from his former lead than he had intended (partly because of his wholesale destruction of American fighting vessels in 1921-22, partly because of his leisurely rate of subsequent new construction, partly because of the other powers' extensive new building programs), his rivals show no inclination to slow down to enable him to catch up, in turn.

Apparently it is only by outbuilding everyone else, and thus having an American navy to scrap, that he can retain control over the situation — an effective method, but rather expensive.

Senator Hale remarked as much, and Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams (a witness before the naval affairs committee) agreed with him.

The thing President Hoover is trying to do is to convince old world statesmen that naval building is ruinous for all the nations.

Again and again American diplomats have emphasized the idea that the enormous cost of armaments unquestionably is largely responsible for the widespread economic depression.

Unfortunately this argument is less likely now than ever to weigh with European negotiators, owing to the practical certainty which their countries never will resume war debt repayments into the United States treasury, which will make it decidedly easier than heretofore for the debtor countries to bear the expense of armament upkeep.

The Japanese, having no large foreign obligations to get out of paying, are not so situated, it is true, as to effect a huge saving in such simple fashion.

Nevertheless, considering that the islanders are engaged in one of the greatest territorial grabs in modern history (the conquest of Manchuria), international observers are skeptical of Nippon's willingness to tie itself at present to a naval limitation policy of more than purely theoretical significance.

Japan's Manchurian venture calls, at the moment, indeed, rather for land forces than for ships. Still, it is not to be forgotten that the campaign is of a nature highly distasteful to the United States and Great Britain at least, whence impartial critics argue that Tokio strategists are exceedingly unlikely to have left naval possibilities entirely out of their reckonings.

The coming conference will be profitable for Geneva, in any event. Congress has growled somewhat over the advance estimate of a $450,000 allowance for the American delegation, and the London Daily Telegraph has complained in plain print at "the cost, in these hard times, of futile conferences" — but of course the bills will have to be paid.

Presumably it will be an enjoyable affair for the delegates likewise.

The Hotel des Bergues, where the American party will stop, is described in travel literature as "the most luxurious" in Geneva. Secretary Stimson predicts that the negotiations will occupy seven or eight months at the inside — in the loveliest spot in Switzerland.

Budgets For The Entire Family

By MRS. MARY MORTON

BUDGETS FOR EVERY FAMILY

Budgeting the Family Food

Most housewives think they know fairly well the amount they spend on food for a week or month. There is a surprising fluctuation, nevertheless, in the monthly item for food at different seasons. This is due not only to the kinds of food available and the local retail prices, but also to changes in the make-up of the household, and the number of house or dinner guests, the number of days in the month, and even the number of hired persons who eat meals at the house.

The father may be away on a business trip in one month. Because of his absence little entertaining will be done. In March the spring holidays may bring college boys or girls home from school, perhaps with friends.

Spring sewing or cleaning may bring in extra help. Regardless of the current prices for food, it is clearly impossible to compare March bills with those of 28 (or 29) day February, and useless to worry or feel oneself a poor manager because the former are large.

If you have previously kept records and know how many persons ate meals during each month, try this plan, suggested by the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. Get out the bills for the same month last year and divide the total by the number of days in that month. Divide again by the number of persons in the family. This is the approximate cost of feeding one person for one day at your standard of living.

If you have no such record, make the best guess you can on the probable amount spent for food and when you make next month's food budget, revise the estimate, if necessary.

The word mausoleum is derived from the tomb erected at Halicarnassus to Mausolus, King of Caria, by his widow, Artemesia. It was built about 350 B. C.

Food After First Six Months

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Cereals should be given the baby at about the age of six months, whether artificially fed or breast-fed. Indeed, they can be begun somewhat earlier if the baby shows a tendency to vomit the milk mixture. By the third month cereal dilutions may be added to milk formulas. Of these, barley water made from the flour has proved itself among the best. Two level teaspoons of flour mixed with enough water to make a paste, then water added up to a pint, and the mixture boiled for 20 minutes, stirring continuously; finally the mixture is cooked for an hour in a double boiler. After this enough water is added to bring the amount up to a pint again.

Cereals for babies should be thoroughly boiled. One or two tablespoons are given once and then twice a day at the time of the regular feeding. Some of the milk formula is poured over the cereal. The baby is fed with a spoon. After a gruel is eaten the rest of the milk for that feeding is given.

Vegetable purees and vegetable soups may be added shortly afterwards. Also soft-boiled eggs. After the ninth or tenth month beef juice can be given and after teething has begun zwiebach or toast.

A baked apple or apple sauce is advisable about the same time. Apple sauce is undoubtedly the finest cathartic for man or child male or female, on the market. At the same time you begin on the baked fruits, add some bacon—very crisp.

Scraped beef, well cooked, ground liver or else the yolk of an egg is a part of the daily diet after the seventh or eighth month. Spinach and carrots in the form of purees are generally well prevented anemia developing.

Orange juice must be given after breast feeding has been discontinued.

The number of meals will gradually be modified during this time, so that by the end of the first year the baby is getting four meals at four-hour intervals, and should be getting a quart of milk a day in addition to the other articles mentioned.

Signs of improper feeding are underweight, overweight, vomiting, excessive regurgitation, gas, fermentation, abnormal stools, diarrhoea and constipation.

The principal cause of trouble in infant feeding is underfeeding. In general, it may be said that if a child is gaining weight steadily it is unwise to make fussy changes in its diet.

Overweight, excessively fat, flabby babies. Usually this is due to excess of sugar in the diet. However, the infant who is truly unhealthy will usually show other signs, such as restlessness, crossness, excessive crying, evidences of colic, loose stools, etc.

Vomiting is the especial mark of fat indigestion. Excessive regurgitation and greenish, frothy acid stools are signs of sugar indigestion. Protein indigestion shows in the production of curds in the stools.

Weaning is advisable anywhere from the sixth to the eighth month. It should be accomplished gradually. If the baby becomes stationary in weight, weaning should usually be considered.

Afraid He'll Lose Pal

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have been in company with HER for a little over a year. She has been the best kind of a pal. She has been out lately with others but still is the same loving woman in my company.

"I do not know whether I should say anything to her about it or not. I care too much to have anything go wrong, or would find out in some way what she really thinks of me, and am financially fitted to take responsibility as yet. Please tell me what to do for I may be losing her."

"WORRIED"

Let her have her head, worried. If she never has a chance to go with others, how can she know whether you are her choice or not? You try to be the best kind of a pal, I know, thoughtful, sympathetic and understanding. Then try not to worry when she goes with others or goes away. If you don't try to hold her, you are much more likely to keep her, paradoxical as that may seem.

Tell her that as she goes with others she won't mind, of course, if you take another girl out once in awhile. And then do just that, and see what her reaction is.

JUST A GIRL: Ever think of joining the Girl Scouts or a similar organization? Their activities are interesting and healthful. And you would meet nice girls and enjoy their companionship.

BETTY JANE: If your parents approve of this young man there is no reason for not going out with him. Pay no attention to the gossip.

ELEANOR RUTH: What are those so-called friends of yours doing to take the boy friend away from you? If their tactics seem to be taking effect, go and do thou likewise.

CONSTANCE: Maybe the boy hasn't enough money to date a girl. That would account for his apparent indifference. You will have to let matters take their course, even if it is hard. No use making advances. I don't believe they would get you anywhere.

JACKIE: Would the boy friend object to your having an occasional date with other boys? If you don't want to marry him it seems unwise to continue going with him.

"steady," as he would have the idea that you were satisfied with him.

I agree with you that you are too young to consider marriage for some time, so why not go with different boys until you find Mr. Right Man? It would be safer and fairer to the current boy friend.

SCHOOL TEACHER AND MRS.

A. M. H.: Mr. T. T.'s letter was sent me for my advice on his problem, not for the purpose of securing some one to go into his home.

He probably has friends or acquaintances who would help him get the person he wants when he made up his mind which course to pursue.

I am sorry but I do not know his name or address and never exchange such through this column. There are several reasons for this and all good ones.

PUZZLED KATE: I think your boy friend loves his wife better than he does you, as his actions speak louder than his words. Why not make an effort to love your good husband and let such a man alone? He is worth caring for.

And a fact that you seem to overlook, is that he belongs to his wife and boys and you to your husband, as long as he wants such an irresponsible wife. If you don't want to find yourself out in the cold, cold world, you had better decide that you are a pretty lucky girl to have such a good husband and try to be the kind of wife to him you should be. How about it?

MERELY MARY ANN: Stop teasing the boy you like to learn to dance. He probably will decide to learn if the crowd stops pestering him about the matter and making him feel important. At present he probably feels at his girl. That would account for his apparent indifference. You will have to let matters take their course, even if it is hard. No use making advances. I don't believe they would get you anywhere.

JACKIE: Would the boy friend object to your having an occasional date with other boys? If you don't want to marry him it seems unwise to continue going with him.

E. B.: It would be perfectly proper for you to invite the lad to your party if you wish to do so.

Recommends Stretching

By GLADYS GLAD

You may be inclined to think that I'm spoofing you, but it's really a true fact that there's a stretch performer who can stretch himself seven inches above his normal height. He's popularly known as The Man Who Grows, and you can actually see him grow taller as he stretches himself.

This gentleman is closer to sixty than to thirty, yet he has the appearance of a man in his early thirties. And he attributes his youthfulness and excellent health to the stretching exercises which have been a part of his daily routine for the last ten or more years.

His theory, which he heartily endorses, is that stretching exercises have the same effect as massage, and instead of tensing the body, they relax it, producing normal circulation of the blood. And that after all, is the main requirement for the continuance of youthfulness and good health.

Stretching exercises bring into play the abdominal muscles, and tend to eliminate the acids that cause fatigue and pain. They develop the lungs and stimulate the circulation. They are of great assistance in reducing weight and slenderizing the figure. And they may even help short girls who are under twenty years of age to increase their stature somewhat.

In all stretching exercises, it is important that you breathe in lots of fresh air. You should inhale deeply while stretching, and exhale while relaxing. And you should carry a mental image of the object to be reached in stretching your arms, legs or hands. Imagine the object to be reached is several inches away from you at all times.

With the permission of the gentleman who originated these exercises, I will give the entire series to you in my next two articles. And if you wish to reduce or wish to attempt to increase your stature, or simply wish to promote good health, and insure a youthful appearance, I'd suggest that you clip out the series and get into the habit of practicing them. For if you make them a part of your daily routine, you may find yourself ever running a close second to the perennial world's champion.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Dieting

E. W.: The diet you describe eliminates more than half the number of calories ordinarily required by a woman of your build, and I would not advise you to follow it. You should not experiment with diets of your own making unless you understand the requirements of your body.

Correct Weight

Betty: I think that a girl 17 years of age, and 5 feet 4 inches in height should weigh about 121 pounds.

Cocoa Butter

Helen: The cocoa butter may be purchased in cake form in any well-stocked drug store. It should be warmed before it is applied.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Who is as the wise man? and who knoweth the interpretation of a thing? a man's wisdom maketh his face to shine, and the boldness of his face shall be changed.—Ecclesiastes, viii, 1.

RETIREES AT 91

Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes has resigned from the United States Supreme Court, at the age of nearly 91 years. Over 50 of those years have been given to distinguished public service. A graduate of Harvard College in the "war class" of 1861, Capt. Holmes enlisted in the 20th Massachusetts Infantry and was graduated from it with three wound stripes. Then he entered Harvard Law School and later engaged in private practice in Boston. A half century ago he was appointed an Associate Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and 17 years later became its Chief Justice. Thirty years ago he was appointed to the United States Supreme Court. The infirmities of age have at last forced his indomitable spirit to bow to the inevitable.

A Puritan by descent, son of a distinguished father, a member by right of birth of what that father had called "the Brahmin caste of New England," Justice Holmes might have been suspected of economic and social liberalism. As a matter of fact it was a doubt on this score which caused President Roosevelt to make extended inquiry before he appointed to the Supreme Court the man who promptly discovered himself as the most liberal of liberals. There could be no doubt as to Justice Holmes' independence of mind; for of all Puritan tenets none was held more firmly than freedom of individual thought. "If there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other," Justice Holmes declared in a famous dissenting opinion, "it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought we hate."

A profound scholar, a rugged independent, who refused to exalt legal restrictions above freedom of the individual, Justice Holmes leaves behind him an impress on the Supreme Court that is not likely soon to be erased. The problem of finding a successor to him is not one of partisan politics or even of Liberalism vs. Conservatism: It is to find a man, if possible, who will approximate his intelligence, breadth of view, and love and understanding of his fellowmen.

Just how basically sound the farmer in the United States finds his position at the beginning of this year is indicated by a recent statement from the Federal Department of Agriculture. A preliminary estimate of production for 1931, by Mr. Nils A. Olsen, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, brightens the picture that less informed persons have drawn of the farming business.

Gross income on the farms decreased in 1931 to $6,920,000,000, or $2,380,000,000 less than in 1930, he estimated. But an equally important fact is that "the combined output of the principal crops was about 10 per cent greater. . . . There is abundant home-grown food on the tables and home-grown feed in the barns."

Farmers who owe large debts of course, can pay these only by selling their products at extremely depreciated prices. But they have an offsetting advantage over urban workers in that so many of their debts can be satisfied with the products of their farms. And, as Mr. Olsen says, it is remarkable how many of the necessities of living a farm can produce when the need requires. — Christian Science Monitor.

Moratorium Stopping Payments

By BARNETT R. BRICKNER

Rabbi, Euclid Avenue Temple, Cleveland

(Barnett R. Brickner was born in New York City in 1882. He is a graduate of Columbia university and Hebrew Union college, Cincinnati, O. He established the first Jewish Psychopathic hospital in Cincinnati and was director of Jewish social agencies in that city. In 1921 he went to Toronto, where he spent five years as a rabbi. He became rabbi of the Euclid Avenue Temple at Cleveland, O., in 1925.)

The twin Humpty-Dumpty of reparations and war debts have tumbled forever.

In my judgment the Hoover moratorium put a stop to something that can never be put into motion again.

Peace is never possible while war debts and reparations endure. If the people of the United States and France, whose governments hold the pivotal position in the world's life, had recognized this when the World War was over and not saddled Germany with reparations, nor insisted on their "pound of flesh" through the payment of war debts, the world's present crisis might never have occurred.

It is, of course, understood that debts owed by foreign governments to private individuals, banks and corporations in this country must be kept sacred, but inter-governmental debts have always, and will be, conditional on political exigencies.

I believe that it will be in the best economic interest of this country that the war debt should not be paid, because it will open up markets for our exports.

We should take the position of setting up into business again a creditor who have been bankrupted, because we need him as an outlet for our production.

The liquidation of the war debt will not only be a good financial investment on our part, but we could insist that the only terms on which we will grant it would be the scaling down of armaments, and that the money released should go into the constructive economic endeavor.

It is folly to believe that reparations and war debts depend ultimately either upon the power of the creditor to collect, or upon the degree on which the debtor regards the debt as involving his honor.

When the French went into the Ruhr they learned something about the folly of trying to collect reparations.

No republican government that wishes to stay in power may advocate the payment of reparations, as the Brüning government under the influence of Hitler demonstrated recently. France must help America in fashioning world opinion in this regard.

Disarmament or any considerable reduction of armaments in Europe is out of the question until the peace treaty is adjusted.

MY NEW YORK

By JAMES ASWELL

NEW YORK. — It seems the Culbertson-Lenz bridge tournament lasted a trifle too long to hold the fevered suspense of the early sessions. The finale didn't have the bang-up splash effect augured by ballyhoo at the beginning. Maybe such gladiatorial tilts need a quick and punchy finish—say, in 50 or 75 rubbers—to achieve the ideal box office. It's curious, too, that none of the contract friends I know changed systems because of the outcome. In a great many homes auction is still played while contract is talked about.

AUTO SHOW A MAGNET

All the regular trains into New York carried additional sleeping and coach cars to take care of the auto show influx. The show itself offered numbers of strange and informing sidelights upon this tumultuous time. The top-hatted and jeweled contingent was not so much in evidence this year, while the faded man-in-the-street turned out in all his strata to see and tinker with gadgets and marvel and years.

More than that. He came, too, to buy. Automobiles for folk of moderate means are in unprecedented abundance this year. Incidentally, the auto show was one of the most effective depression tonics yet found. There people could gaze upon, could touch, the shining toys which await them, if not now, then around that corner which had been mentioned so stressfully that it had become unreal.

Mourful gentlemen and ladies gazed and remembered high days.

STRAWS IN THE HURRICANE

The press agent for Greta Garbo, if she had one, managed her sojourn here with extraordinary skill. Prior to the star's arrival there was a flurry of rumors. She was here. She wasn't here. And so was her Aunt Hepatica. It was great fun. Before she left the papers' leg men were trailing her obsequiously and the gossip writers were whispering about her on noiseless, rapt machines.

She had been seen here and there. Her demeanor was charted from day to day with the detail of a Babson report. There is no reason why the town should not have been entertained in this fashion, but many a star with just as much fame has arrived and departed with no more than a line and a thumb-nail cut in the papers.

I'm wondering who handles La Garbo's "public relations," as Ivy Lee would say. He ought to have a raise.

The Hotel des Bergues, where the American party will stop, is described in travel literature as "the most luxurious" in Geneva. Secretary Stimson predicts that the negotiations will occupy seven or eight months at the inside—in the loveliest spot in Switzerland.

Budgets For The Entire Family

By MRS. MARY MORTON

BUDGETS FOR EVERY FAMILY

Budgeting the Family Food

Most housewives think they know fairly well the amount they spend on food for a week or month. There is a surprising fluctuation, nevertheless, in the monthly item for food at different seasons. This is due not only to the kinds of food available and the local retail prices, but also to changes in the make-up of the household, and the number of house or dinner guests, the number of days in the month, and even the number of hired persons who eat meals at the house.

The father may be away on a business trip in one month. Because of his absence little entertaining will be done. In March the spring holidays may bring college boys or girls home from school, perhaps with friends.

Spring sewing or cleaning may bring in extra help. Regardless of the current prices for food, it is clearly impossible to compare March bills with those of 28 or 29 day February, and useless to worry or feel oneself a poor manager because the former are large.

If you have previously kept records and know how many persons ate meals during each month, try this plan, suggested by the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. Get out the bills for the same month last year and divide the total by the number of days in that month. Divide again by the number of persons in the family. This is the approximate cost of feeding one person for one day at your standard of living.

If you have no such record, make the best guess you can on the probable amount spent for food and when you make next month's food budget, revise the estimate, if necessary.

The word mausoleum is derived from the tomb erected at Halicarnassus to Mausolus, King of Caria, by his widow, Artemesia. It was built about 350 B. C.

Food After First Six Months

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Cereals should be given the baby at about the age of six months, whether artificially fed or breast fed. Indeed, they can be begun somewhat earlier if the baby shows a tendency to vomit the milk mixture. By the third month cereal dilutions may be added to milk formulas. Of these, barley water made from the flour has proved itself among the best. Two level teaspoons of flour mixed with enough water to make a paste, then water added up to a pint, and the mixture boiled for 20 minutes, stirring continuously; finally the mixture is cooked for an hour in a double boiler. After this enough water is added to bring the amount up to a pint again.

Cereals for babies should be thoroughly boiled. One or two tablespoons are given once and then twice a day at the time of the regular feeding. Some of the milk formula is poured over the cereal. The baby is fed with a spoon. After a gruel is eaten the rest of the milk for that feeding is given.

Vegetable purees and vegetable soups may be added shortly afterwards. Also a soft boiled egg. After the ninth or tenth month beef juice can be given and after feeding has begun zwiebach or toast.

A baked apple or apple sauce is admissible at the same time. Apple sauce is undoubtedly the finest cathartic for man or child male or female, on the market. At the same time you begin on the baked fruits, add some bacon—very crisp.

Scraped beef, well cooked, ground liver or else the yolk of an egg is a part of the daily diet.

after the seventh or eighth month. Spinach and carrots in the form of purees are generally held to prevent anemia developing. Orange juice must be given after breast feeding has been discontinued.

The number of meals will gradually be modified during this time so that by the end of the first year the baby is getting four meals at four-hour intervals, and should be getting a quart of milk a day in addition to the other articles mentioned.

Signs of improper feeding are underweight, overweight, vomiting, excessive regurgitation, gas, fermentation, abnormal stools, diarrhoea and constipation.

The principal cause of trouble in infant feeding is underfeeding. In general, it may be said that if a child is gaining weight steadily it is unwise to make fussy changes in its diet.

Overweight, excessively fat, flabby babies. Usually this is due to excess of sugar in the diet. However, the infant who is truly unhealthy will usually show other signs, such as restlessness, crossness, excessive crying, evidences of colic, loose stools, etc.

Vomiting is the special mark of fat indigestion. Excessive regurgitation and greenish, frothy acid stools are signs of sugar indigestion. Protein indigestion shows in the production of curds in the stools.

Weaning is advisable anywhere from the sixth to the eighth month. It should be accomplished gradually. If the baby becomes stationary in weight, weaning should usually be considered.

Afraid He'll Lose Pal

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have been in company with H.R. for a little over a year. She has been the best kind of a pal. She has been out lately with others but still is the same loving woman in my company."

"I do not know whether I should say anything to her about it or not. I care too much to have anything go wrong, or I would find out in some way what she really thinks of me. I am not financially fitted to take responsibility as yet. Please tell me what to do for I may be losing her."

"WORRIED."

Let her have her head, worried. If she never has a chance to go with others, how can she know whether you are her choice or not? You try to be the best kind of a pal, I know, thoughtful, sympathetic and understanding. Then try not to worry when she goes with others or goes away. If you don't try to hold her, you are much more likely to keep her, paradoxical as that may seem.

Tell her that as she goes with others she won't mind, of course, if you take another girl out once in awhile. And then do just that and see what her reaction is.

JUST A GIRL: Ever think of joining the Girl Scouts or a similar organization? Their activities are interesting and healthful. And you would meet nice girls and enjoy their companionship.

BETTY JANE: If your parents approve of this young man there is no reason for not going out with him. Pay no attention to the gossip.

ELEANOR RUTH: What are those so-called friends of yours doing to take the boy friend away from you? If their tactics seem to be taking effect, go and do thou likewise.

CONSTANCE: Maybe the boy hasn't enough money to date a girl. That would account for his apparent indifference. You will have to let matters take their course, even if it is hard. No use making advances. I don't believe they would get you anywhere.

JACKIE: Would the boy friend object to your having an occasional date with other boys? If you don't want to marry him, it seems unwise to continue going with him.

MERELY MARY ANN: Stop teasing the boy you like to learn to dance. He probably will decide to learn if the crowd stops pestering him about the matter and making him feel important. At present he probably feels that his refusal to learn to dance and his dislike of it make him interestingly different. If you like him well enough, give up dancing for a time until he comes around, unless you like both boys well enough to go sometimes with one and sometimes with the other.

E. B.: It would be perfectly proper for you to invite the lad to your party if you wish to do so.

Recommends Stretching

By GLADYS GLAD

You may be inclined to think that I'm spoofing you, but it's really a true fact that there's a theatrical performer who can stretch himself seven inches above his normal height. He's popularly known as The Man Who Grows, and you can actually see him grow taller as he stretches himself.

This gentleman is closer to sixty than to thirty, yet he has the appearance of a man in his early thirties. And he attributes his youthfulness and excellent health to the stretching exercises which have been a part of his daily routine for the last ten or more years. His theory, which is heartily endorsed by that stretching exercise have the same effect as massage, and instead of tensing the body, they relax it, producing normal circulation of the blood. And that after all, is the main requirement for the continuance of youthfulness and good health.

Stretching exercises bring into play the abdominal muscles, and tend to eliminate the acids that cause fatigue and pain. They develop the lungs and stimulate the circulation. They are of great assistance in reducing weight and slenderizing the figure. And they may even help short girls who are under twenty years of age to increase their stature somewhat.

In all stretching exercises, it is important that you breathe in lots of fresh air. You should inhale deeply while stretching, and exhale while relaxing. And you should carry a mental image of the object to be reached in stretching your arms, legs or hands. Imagine that the object to be reached is several inches away from you at all times.

With the permission of the gentleman who originated these exercises, I will give the entire series to you in my next two articles. And if you wish to reduce or wish to attempt to increase your stature, or simply wish to promote good health, and insure a youthful appearance, I'd suggest that you clip out the series and go into the habit of practicing them. For if you make them a part of your daily routine, you may find yourself, even without a close second, the perennial youthful family ward.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Dieting

E. W.: The diet you describe eliminates more than half the number of calories ordinarily required by a woman of your build, and I would not advise you to follow it. You should not experiment with diets of your own making unless you understand the requirements of your body.

Correct Weight

Betty: I think that a girl 17 years of age, and 5 feet 4 inches in height should weigh about 121 pounds.

Cocoa Butter

Helen: The cocoa butter may be purchased in cake form in any well-stocked drug store. It should be warmed before it is applied.

The Phillips Barrier, 1932 model, is expected to make its appearance on Ohio race tracks this season.

Steve G. Phillips, popular Xenia horseman and nationally known starter, believes his latest invention far superior to the former device he introduced in 1931. The novel feature of his latest barrier is that it is operated by a variable speed motor and moves (the barrier not the motor) down the track in front of the horses.

Thus the horses and drivers will have something to guide them by as they come down the stretch toward the wire. This ought to keep the wigglers more in stride all the way and also keep the field more intact as it passes in front of the grand stand, Steve believes.

Horsemen and fans will of course reserve judgment until they have seen the Xenian's newest barrier in operation, but Steve thinks it is a foregone conclusion that the superiority of his new invention over all former systems will be instantly apparent.

It is generally conceded that the barrier system itself is the most popular innovation in the harness racing sport since the bikes were introduced.

Steve, by the way, differs from Thomas A. Billingsley, of Greenville, who proposed before the Ohio Fair Managers' Association that open betting be permitted as another method of popularizing horse racing. This suggestion appeared to have met with wide spread approval among the speed secretaries.

The Xenia starter holds the opposite view. While betting on the races is all right on the Grand Circuit or at other special race meetings, Phillips believes that open wagering has no place at county fair races.

County fairs, he points out, exist primarily as an agricultural exposition and attract an agricultural class of people. The harness races are merely a side attraction for the further entertainment of fair patrons.

Races at county fairs and races on the Grand Circuit may be likened to amateur sport or compared with professional sport. Fair races attract a different class of people, not the speculative sort who frequent race meets where open betting is countenanced.

The column would not be complete in our estimation without a few of the customary golf oddities. Joe Kirkwood can drive three balls at one time, 150 yards each. Harry Varden played two years and was only off the fairway once (1898-1899) St. Anne's, Engand, (Bobby Jones lost eighteen pounds in the National Amateur championship in 1919).

CEDARVILLE LOSES TO RIO GRANDE FIVE

Rio Grande cagers registered a 29 to 20 victory over Cedarville College's quintet in a basketball contest on the Cedarville floor Friday night.

Believe It Or Not, Bucs Beat Trojans 27-26

CENTRAL BACK IN LEAGUE RACE WITH VICTORY OVER TROY HIGH

Visitors Stage Comeback In Last Half To Throw Scare Into Ranks Of Xenia Partisans; Dalton High Scorer For Buccaneers

By PHIL FRAME
ELL, of all things, Cross our heart and hope to see you in the funny papers if Our Boys didn't get back into the thick of the Miami Valley League basketball scramble and then some Friday night when they outpointed Troy High by one point, 27 to 26.

Good old Central High gymnasium, scene of many a stirring basketball contest, seldom has been the location of one much more enthralling than that which saw Xenia Central not only break a four-game losing streak, but also start along the comeback trail that may possibly lead to another championship.

Doubtless it is a little premature to be so optimistic, but those Buccaneers certainly are back in favor with Xenia fans once more after their brilliant triumph over a more highly favored Troy quintet.

The one-point margin is by no means indicative of the actual superiority of the Bucs over the Trojans, who were not such great shakes after all. At one time in the first half Xenia, executing scoring plays to perfection and with its offense clicking with clockwork precision, had accumulated a thirteen-point lead.

Xenia was ahead, 7 to 1 when the first period ended. In the second quarter, after the Bucs, working smoothly and giving a most finished exhibition, had run the count up to 18 to 5, Coach "Pinky" Wilson jerked his entire first team.

This take-it-for-granted game-is-in-the-bag move almost proved disastrous, as after events proved. Before the first half was over, Troy had added five more points to its total, making the score 18 to 10.

Starting the second half, with four-fifths of the Buccaneers regulars back in the lineup, Troy got

ROSS CONTINUES ITS VICTORY MARCH

CLASS B TEAMS TO COMPETE AT WILMINGTON

Sectional Tourney To Be Staged On College Floor

Greene County's two representative teams in the 1932 sectional state class "B" basketball tournament will compete at the college gymnasium in Wilmington, March 4 and 5, instead of at Dayton or Springfield, as in former years.

Plans for the tourney at Wilmington were altered at a recent meeting of the state board of athletic control. Adams County was removed from the list of counties to compete at Wilmington and has been replaced by Greene County. Adams County teams will go to the Southern Ohio sectional meet at Waverly.

The six counties now definitely supposed to send their champion teams to Wilmington are: Greene, Fayette, Highland, Warren and Clinton. All but Fayette County will send their runner-up county tournament teams also.

The two exempted class B schools in Greene County, the O. S. and S. O. Home of Xenia and Bath Twp. of Osborn, will compete in the sectional tourney at Springfield, however. They do not participate in the county tournament.

Greene County's representatives in the Wilmington tournament will be from the county supervised group, which includes Beaver Creek, Cedarville, Yellow Springs, Jamestown, Ross Twp., Jefferson Twp., Spring Valley and Bellbrook.

SIDNEY TEAM WILL PLAY JAMESTOWN

Jamestown basketball fans will be treated to an unusual exhibition next Tuesday evening at the high school gymnasium when the Jamestown Merchants play the Prima Athletic Club team of Sidney.

The visiting team is made up of former college stars, who have perfected themselves in playing the game on roller skates and they will give a demonstration of their ability on skates preceding the basketball game.

A preliminary game is scheduled for 8 o'clock and will be followed by the skating exhibition for fifteen minutes, with the main event scheduled for 9:15. The Birch brothers, formerly of the University of North Carolina, Kaser and Bemis, both former University of Detroit stars and Spraul, high-scoring man for Bliss Business College last year, are in the lineup of the Sidney team and scintillate at the court game either with or without skates. The team won all of its thirty-six games last season.

CENTRAL BACK IN LEAGUE RACE WITH VICTORY OVER TROY HIGH

Visitors Stage Comeback In Last Half To Throw Scare Into Ranks Of Xenia Partisans; Dalton High Scorer For Buccaneers

By PHIL FRAME

WELL, of all things, Cross our heart and hope to see you in the funny papers if Our Boys didn't get back into the thick of the Miami Valley League basketball scramble and then some Friday night when they outpointed Troy High by one point, 27 to 26.

Good old Central High gymnasium, scene of many a stirring basketball contest, seldom has been the location of one much more enthralling than that which saw Xenia Central not only break a four-game losing streak, but also start along the comeback trail that may possibly lead to another championship.

Doubtless it is a little premature to be so optimistic, but these Buccaneers certainly are back in favor with Xenia fans once more after their brilliant triumph over a more highly favored Troy quintet.

The one-point margin is by no means indicative of the actual superiority of the Bucs over the Trojans, who were not such great shakes after all. At one time in the first half Xenia, executing scoring plays to perfection and with its offense clicking with clockwork precision, had accumulated a thirteen-point lead.

Xenia was ahead, 7 to 1 when the first period ended. In the second quarter, after the Bucs, working smoothly and giving a most finished exhibition, had run the count up to 18 to 5, Coach "Pinky" Wilson jerked his entire first team.

This take-it-for-granted-the-game-is-in-the-bag move almost proved disastrous, as after events proved. Before the first half was over, Troy had added five more points to its total, making the score 18 to 10.

Starting the second half, with four-fifths of the Buccaneers regulars back in the lineup, Troy got

CLASS B TEAMS TO COMPETE AT WILMINGTON

Sectional Tourney To Be Staged On College Floor

Greene County's two representatives in the 1932 sectional state class "B" basketball tournament will compete at the college gymnasium in Wilmington, March 4 and 5, instead of at Dayton or Springfield, as in former years.

Plans for the tourney at Wilmington were altered at a recent meeting of the state board of athletic control. Adams County was removed from the list of counties to compete at Wilmington and has been replaced by Greene County. Adams County teams will go to the Southern Ohio sectional meet at Waverly.

The six counties now definitely supposed to send their champion teams to Wilmington are: Greene, Fayette, Highland, Brown, Warren, and Clinton. All but Fayette County will send their runner-up county tournament teams also.

The two exempted class B schools in Greene County, the O. S. and S. O. Home of Xenia and Bath Twp. of Osborn, will compete in the sectional tourney at Springfield, however. They do not participate in the county tournament.

Greene County's representatives in the Wilmington tournament will be from the county supervised group, which includes Beaver Creek, Cedarville, Yellow Springs, Jamestown, Ross Twp., Jefferson Twp., Spring Valley and Bellbrook.

SIDNEY TEAM WILL PLAY JAMESTOWN

Jamestown basketball fans will be treated to an unusual exhibition next Tuesday evening at the high school gymnasium when the Jamestown Merchants play the Prima Athletic Club team of Sidney.

The visiting team is made up of former college stars, who have perfected themselves in playing the game on roller skates and they will give a demonstration of their ability on skates preceding the basketball game.

A preliminary game is scheduled for 8 o'clock and will be followed by the skating exhibition for fifteen minutes, with the main event scheduled for 9:15. The Birch brothers, formerly of the University of North Carolina, Kaser and Waldron, both former University of Detroit stars and Spral, high-scoring man for Bilas Business College last year, are in the lineup of the Sidney team and scintillate at the court game either with or without skates. The team won all of its thirty-six games last season.

BELLBROOK, SPRING VALLEY, BATH WIN COUNTY CONTESTS

Yellow Springs, Jefferson, Ross, Beaver, Cedarville And Bath Girls Show Victories For Friday Night Games

Bellbrook, Ross Twp., Spring Valley, Osborn Bath and the Xenia O. S. and S. O. Home boys' basketball quintets are in possession of victories scored in and out of Greene County class B court circles Friday night.

Bryan High of Yellow Springs, Jefferson Twp., Jamestown and Beaver Creek boys' teams met defeats.

Feminine basketball contests involving Greene County girls' teams resulted in victories for Bryan High, Jefferson, Ross Twp., Beaver Creek, Cedarville and Osborn Bath, while the O. S. and S. O. Home, Bellbrook, Jamestown and Spring Valley teams lost their games.

HOME-YELLOW SPRINGS
A rejuvenated O. S. and S. O. Home basketball team triumphed over Bryan High cagers, 24 to 18 at Yellow Springs Friday night, marking the first time in years a cadet quintet has defeated Bryan on the hardwood. The Home was in front, 18 to 7, at the half. In a preliminary game, the Home girls lost to Bryan's feminine team, 23 to 17.

Jefferson Twp. girls' team won their game, 24 to 18, over Bryan High. The team was in front, 18 to 7, at the half. In a preliminary game, the team lost to Bryan's feminine team, 23 to 17.

BEAVER-SPRING VALLEY
Beaver Creek High and Spring Valley High boys' and girls' basketball teams engaged in a triple header at Spring Valley Friday night, with Beaver girls winning, 29 to 25, Spring Valley boys triumphing, 35 to 15, and the Valley reserve boys team blanking Beaver seconds, 14 to 0. Lineups:

Government Officials To Be Heard On Radio Forum

By MILDRED MASON
CABINET members, senators, rep-resentatives and other high government officials will be heard in the New National Radio Forum to be inaugurated over an extensive NBC network Monday evening. The program will be heard through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 10 o'clock.

Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington Star, will be master of ceremonies on the program. Details of the inaugural program have not been completed and the speaker has not been announced. Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will appear on the second program to be broad-cast January 25.

To Attack Communism.
William D. Mack, United States sec-retary of labor and Hamilton Fish, U. S. congressman from New York, will attack communism in the second Anti-Communist convention at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria in New York Sunday. The program of the convention will be broadcast over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 10:15 p. m. Doak and Fish will urge more than 400 leaders of many groups, including patriotic, civic, religious and labor organizations to combat commun-istic activities throughout the United States.

To Broadcast play.
Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country" will be pre-sented over an NBC-WFAP net-work by a cast of leading stage and radio actors Monday at 8 p. m. The role of Lieutenant Philip Nolan, the man who cursed his country, will be played by Walter Connolly, now co-starring on Broadway with Helen Hayes in "The Good Fairy". The radio adaptation will follow the familiar plot of Hale's story.

To Honor Florida.
Countess Olga Albani, a native of Barcelona, Spain, and an out-standing radio soprano, will bring the atmosphere of Spain in Florida to the microphone when she is guest artist on the "Parade of States" program over an NBC net-work through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 9:30 p. m. A Spanish street scene, with Miss Albani and a male chorus, will be a feature of the program.

Mary Brown Is Mary Steele.
This Mary Brown, who sings with an orchestra Monday nights at 9:30 o'clock over WLW, Cincinnati, is none other than your old friend, Mary Steele. Mary used her maid-name for almost a year after she married Robert Brown, WLW's chief announcer. Then someone wrote the song, "Everyone in Town Loves Little Mary Brown" and Mary decided that simple names were making good on the air so she decided to change.

UNIVERSITY OF ALL NATIONS

THIRTY-EIGHT BORN IN GREENE COUNTY DURING DECEMBER

Thirty-eight babies were born in Greene County during December according to that month's report as submitted by Mrs. Pearl Wit-tenmyer, county health nurse. Of this number Xenia ranked first with twenty and Osborn was second with ten births.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 24

LUCK went with her. A selection from a large stock could not have resulted more satisfactorily. Mar-cia found a white crepe creation that suited the occasion perfectly. There were large motifs of black satin stitched with white, and set at an angle to one side of the front and back, just below the narrow belt. The widely flared trousers were edged with black, and the three-quarter flared sleeves were faced with wide bands of the same. A large square onyx pin, set with a chip of diamond, held the scarf, and completed the ensemble. There was also a huge white chif-fon handkerchief with black polka dots that surely belonged to it, and the white pumps with black trim, which she already wore, could not have been more suitable. An hour later she met Turner, hap-pily serene in the knowledge that she had met the requirements of the party admirably.

His glance told her that she was right. He wore white flannels and sport shirt open at the neck, with black-trim white oxford. The night was very warm. He looked younger, and even more debonair than upon previous occasions when she had seen him.

"You are never a disappointment, are you?" he was delighted. "I've been thinking about you a great deal this week, and found that I missed you very much. Did you hap-pen to think of me a little?"

"Of course, I did," she was pleas-antly matter-of-fact. "I hope you accomplished what you wanted to do."

His head turned in a quick nega-tive gesture. "Not much. It's a long proposition. Any news from home?" he remarked carelessly.

"Oh, yes! I was just reading a letter when you phoned. And that reminds me that I didn't even fin-ish it," he amended.

"The inference being—" he prompted.

"That I forgot about the letter from Ted when I heard from you," she confessed.

"Poor Ted. He has my sympa-thy."

"Well, I had read most of it—at least, the most important part of it. He wrote about Vivian. It seems that her aviator has disappeared, as suddenly as he appeared. And the poor child is all broken up over it."

"Is that so?" Turner exclaimed, thoughtfully. "But he may fly a-round again any time," he added.

"It doesn't look like it," Marcia explained. "You see, Ted has been working on his plane and he has been making these regular trips to see Vivian. Now, neither of them have had a word from him. No ex-planations as you would expect him to send to either of us. It worries me—about Vi. I wish I were there with her."

"Oh, she'll be all right. We all have to have our disillusionments, you know. Perhaps it was best for her, after all."

Turner seemed to be absorbed in his own thoughts during the rest of the drive, and Marcia reveled in the magic speeding through the soft moonlight darkness toward a evening of extravagant pleasure.

Jean greeted them in high excite-ment, wearing scarlet pajamas that had only crossed straps for a back, and carried under her arm a huge ivory dice that must have measured a cubic foot. A group of men and girls were chattering in the flood-lit court that had been trans-ferred into a fine play board. Mar-cia was enchanted with the novelty of it, when Jean explained that the game was to be played by the men versus the girls, who were the hu-man "pieces," that would change their positions as the dice decreed.

Fifteen gorgeously pajama-clad girls, and fifteen men took their places on the board, while a player at each end of the court rolled the dice. The game developed a great deal of hilarity, argument, and comment. With sparkling, and spirits mounted, encouraged further by the drinks that were dispensed at a buffet table on the lawn, where a variety of refreshments were to be had between games. Excitement was keen.

Marcia was astounded at the size of the stakes, and the glibness with which the opponents "doubled" them. Apparently, their eagerness to win was not prompted by the need to win, so much as by the in-herent urge of the gamble. Dollar stakes that were doubled, resulted

By MILDRED MASON

CABINET members, senators, representatives and other high government officials will be heard in the New National Radio Forum to be inaugurated over an extensive NBC network Monday evening. The program will be heard through WSAI, Cincinnati, at 10 o'clock.

Oliver Owen Kuhn, managing editor of the Washington Star, will be master of ceremonies on the program. Details of the inaugural program have not been completed and the speaker has not been announced. Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will appear on the second program to be broadcast January 25.

To Attack Communism.

William Doak, United States secretary of labor, and Hamilton Fish, U. S. congressman from New York, will attack communism in the second program. Details of the program have not been completed and the speaker has not been announced. Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will appear on the second program to be broadcast January 25.

To Broadcast play.

Edward Everett Hale's "The Man Without a Country" will be presented over an NBC-WEAF network by a cast of leading stage and radio actors Monday at 8 p. m. The role of Lieutenant Philip Nolan, the man who cursed the nation, will be played by Walter Connolly, now co-starring on Broadway with Helen Hayes in "The Good Fairy". The radio adaptation will follow the familiar plot of Hale's story.

To Honor Florida.

Countess Olga Albani, a native of Barcelona, Spain, and an outstanding radio soprano, will bring the atmosphere of Spain in Florida to the microphone when she is guest artist on the "Parade of States" program over an NBC network through WSAI, Cincinnati, Monday at 9:30 p. m. A Spanish street scene, with Miss Albani and a male chorus, will be a feature of the program.

Newspaper Drama Coming; Journalistic Slumming

This department hopes that "Five Star Final," Louis Weitzenkorn's great drama, will be taken for what it is—an expose of a highly sensational type of journalism practiced by certain tabloids and not a true picture of the profession as a whole.

The picture that Warners made of this Broadway hit, comes to the Bijou Theater Sunday and Monday and these lines are written in a spirit of defense. Weitzenkorn is a New York editor, who had experience on the tabloids and he has drawn a startling picture of so-called "yellow journalism" from which Warners made one of the best pictures of the year.

Edward G. Robinson does the role of the managing editor. M. B.

It is real entertainment, with Ernest Torrence and James "Schnozzle" Durante furnishing most of the comedy.

Warner, Marian Marsh, Anthony Bushell, George E. Stone, Frances Starr, Ona Munson, Boris Karloff, Robert Elliott, Aline MacMahon, Purnell Pratt, David Torrence, Oscar Apfel, Gladys Lloyd, Evelyn Hall and Harold Walbridge are in the excellent cast.

A note of sadness creeps into the week's opening program at the Orphum where Robert Ames and Robert Williams, both now dead, will appear on the screen with Ina Claire in the RKO-Pathe film, "Rebound."

It will be recalled Ames died under rather mysterious circumstances at the height of a love affair with Miss Claire while Williams succumbed after an appendicitis operation while working in a picture with Constance Bennett. "Rebound" is a picture version of the Donald Ogden Stewart play and is one of Miss Claire's finest. Myrna Loy, Hedda Hopper, Hale Hamilton, Louise Crosser Hale and others are in the cast. The film will be screened Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

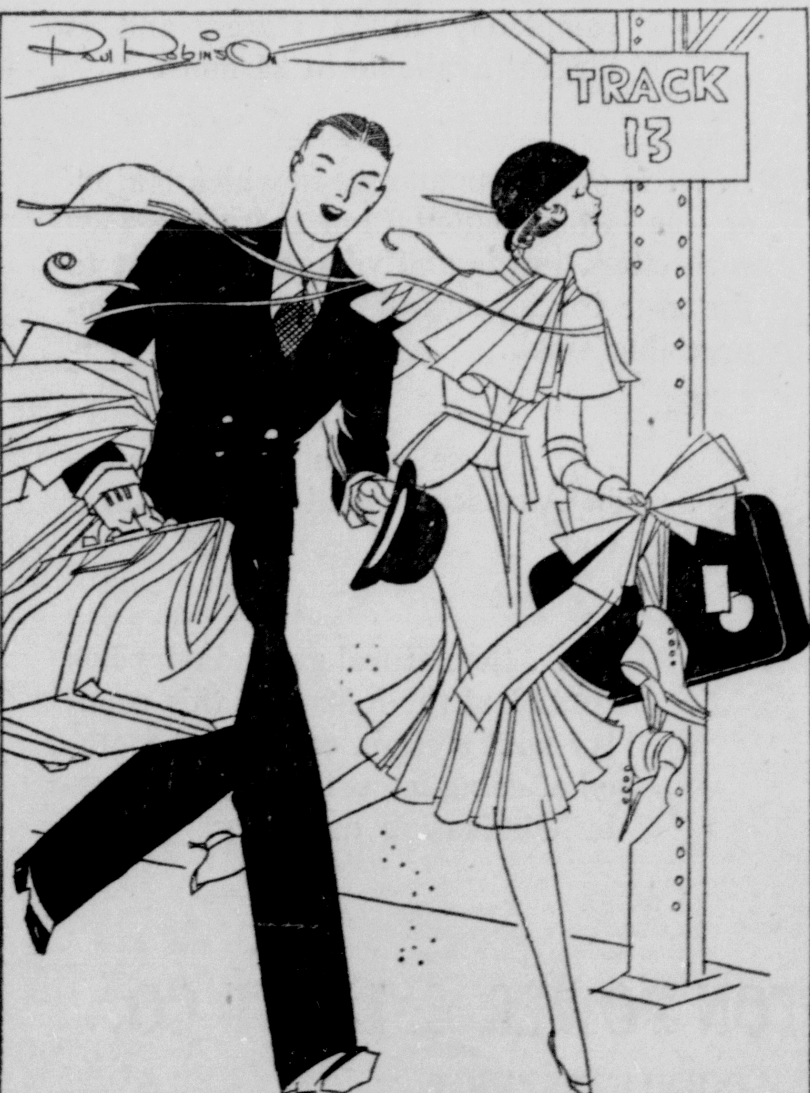

Boris Karloff, the versatile young man who has been winning wide acclaim with his performance in the title role of "Frankenstein" will be introduced to Xenia fans through a role in "Five Star Final" at the Bijou and in "Graft," the Universal picture at the Orphum Wednesday and Thursday. Both of the parts are newspaper roles. "Graft" features Regis Toomey in the part of a reporter and he is supported by Sue Carol, Dorothy Revier, Karloff, William Davidson, Richard Tucker, Willard Robertson, Harold Goodwin, George Irving and Carmelita Geraghty.

REVIVAL SERVICES
AT TRINITY CHURCH
ARE NEARING CLOSE

Basing his remarks on the talk of Nicodemus with Jesus and the answer of Jesus, "Ye must be born again," the Rev. C. A. Hutchison, Cedarville, preached to a large congregation on "The New Birth" at revival services at Trinity M. E. Church Friday evening.

"I would like for you tonight to know that you can say, 'I know that Jesus saves me right now.' I would like for you to be able to say that you had a definite experience ten, twenty or thirty years ago but more than that to say that you have that experience tonight. There is never any experience in life that you have that you are not born into it. The need of a new birth grows out of the experience of sin. Sin becomes imbedded so deeply into your life that nothing but a miracle can save you by an immediate present conversion."

The speaker then continued: "The biological test of life includes four things: first, action—if you are born of God's spirit you will be full of action and you will want to do something; second, hunger—if you are born again you will hunger for God's work and if you are born again you will favor prayer meeting on Wednesday night—above everything else; third, growth—when people do not grow mentally and physically it is terrible but how pitiful it is when they do not grow spiritually; fourth, reproduction—the fourth test of life is to be able to reproduce one of your kind. Until you have the fourth test your life is not what God intended it to be."

Following the sermon the altar was crowded with persons who pledged to continue praying for the revival spirit to be prominent in Xenia and as far as possible to show that pledge by attending mid-week prayer services.

The meetings will close Sunday evening when the Rev. Mr. Hutchison will preach on, "The Hidden Treasure." It has been planned that Sunday School classes, the Epworth League and other organizations and those who have found Christ during the meetings sit together. There will be baptism and reception of members both Sunday morning and Sunday evening.

LATIN CLUB

The Junior-Senior Latin Club held its monthly business and social time Friday morning. John Beacham, president, presided at the meeting. The secretary, Carl Smith and treasurer, Martha Ann Baughn gave their reports. The name committee gave a report and several names were submitted and voted upon, the name Ciceronians being chosen.

The rest of the time was turned over to the program committee with Mary Nel Dunkle, chairman. The first feature was a comedy, called "A Day in a Broadcasting Station." John Beacham was the announcer. The first speaker heard was Charles Weaver, who gave the morning exercises. Next, Virginia Kinsey and Jane Finney were heard in a duet called "Lies." Mary Davidson then told how to keep air holes from cakes. Then Tom Huston announced a few members of his company, Mary Waddle told how to keep the hands lovely and white by using Ivory. Then Carl Smith was heard and he gave a talk on his plan for bigger and better prosperity. Several victrola records were heard. Irma Van Horn was accompanist. The program would have been left unfinished if singing and yells weren't given. Katherine Kingsbury led the class in several yells. Team rah, Smitty rah, Hyman rah, were given followed by Haynes rah for the Latin teacher, Miss Fannie K. Haynes.

PEP ASSEMBLY

The high school assembled in the auditorium Friday afternoon for a pep assembly "Dixiey Bray," an official gave a short talk and then Katherine Kingsbury and Velda Jones with the pep squad on the stage, led the school in the school song and several yells.

THERE was a man who said, "Anyone who'd try to rob my home would get in debt, ha! ha!" And they got away with silver, two watches and a sum of money. Insure against thieves.

The Nautilus College Alumnae Club of the National Association of College Women will give a reception honoring faculty women and faculty wives Sunday afternoon. The hours of the reception are from four to six o'clock in the parlors of Mitchell Hall. A number of women who are graduates of colleges forming the association are expected to attend from Cincinnati, Dayton, Columbus and Springfield.

A spirited contest is on this week by the ladies comprising the Stewardess Board of Trinity A. M. E. Church. They are conducting what is known as a "Pew Sunday." Each lady has invited friends to attend service Sunday morning and occupy seats in assigned pews. A donation for the support of the church will be taken.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Lewis of Indianapolis, Ind. and Miss Sula C. Stephens of Ocean Grove, N. J., and a student of the Lewis Business Training School, accompanied Miss Elizabeth Harris to Wilberforce to take up her school work for the second quarter.

Rev. James Bell, presiding elder of the Cincinnati district, with headquarters in Dayton, held the second quarterly meeting of Trinity A. M. E. Church, Sunday.

A number of members of the Intracultural Club of Dayton made a special trip to Wilberforce, last Sunday to hear Rev. L. C. Ridley deliver a religious discourse on a topic for the club. After the service the visitors were entertained in the assembly room of Arnett Hall, where Mr. C. H. Johnson delivered a short address.

Chi Lambda Chapter, the graduate chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha, held its regular meeting for January last Friday evening at the residence of Dean and Mrs. F. A. McGinnis. After the regular business was finished Mr. Howard Daniels and Dean F. A. The student body was given a rare musical and vaudeville treat Friday afternoon when Miss Adelaide Hall, a noted vaudeville actress of New York, appeared on the stage in Galloway Hall and gave demonstrations of her work as a vaudeville performer. Miss Hall is on the RKO circuit and has been greeted by large crowds during this week in Dayton. Miss Hall was the leading star in the popular play, "Black Birds" during the season of 1931, under the management of Lew Leslie. On her trip to the school she was accompanied by Messrs. Carter and Young, who gave several musical selections.

"The Whole Town's Talking" is a play that is attracting the attention of the citizens and student body. It will be presented by the Wilberforce Players under direction of Mr. Mack M. Greene, Friday evening, January 22, in Galloway Hall. The play was written by two well known authors, John Emerson and Anita Loos. The story is centered around a middle-aged business man by the name of Henry Simmons. He, desiring to retire from his business and still keep it in the family, schemes to have his daughter marry his business partner, Chester Binney. The daughter is a modern college woman and the business partner has had a love affair with a famous movie queen named Letty Lythe. Believing this tale to be true the women of the whole town are talking about the affair. His stock, Chester's, went up a thousand points with the women only to fall back to zero again when the very movie actress the story was made around came to town bringing with her her fiance and expugilist. Then complications arose only to culminate in a terrible fight between Chester and the pugilist which ends to the amusement of everybody. You will be missing a real treat by not seeing this very interesting production. Those who will take the leading parts in the play are, Alan DeVeaux, Mr. Simmons; Marjorie Bean, Mrs. Simmons; Florence Winbush, Annie (Maid); Florence

Cartier, Ethel Simmons (Daughter), Dick Leubers, Chester Benny; Ann Jennings, Sadie Bloom; Rose Lee Loyd, Letty Lythe; D. V. Kyle, Mr. Donald Swift; Wm. Lathan, Mr. Roger Shield; Edith Moore, Sally; Bernice Spaulding, Lula.

The young men of XI Chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity were much elated over the winning of the McGee Cup awarded by the Lucas Lee McGee. This cup is awarded for the most efficient chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity for two years, to be retained by the chapter that wins it three times. It is shaped on the order of a silver loving cup having two handles and a bowl that would hold about two quarts and stands about eighteen inches high. The name of the donor is engraved on the outside and also the purpose for which it was donated.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

LATIN CLUB

The Junior-Senior Latin Club held its monthly business and social time Friday morning. John Beacham, president, presided at the meeting. The secretary, Carl Smith and treasurer, Martha Ann Baughn gave their reports. The name committee gave a report and several names were submitted and voted upon, the name Ciceronians being chosen.

The rest of the time was turned over to the program committee with Mary Nel Dunkle, chairman. The first feature was a comedy, called "A Day in a Broadcasting Station." John Beacham was the announcer. The first speaker heard was Charles Weaver, who gave the morning exercises. Next, Virginia Kinsey and Jane Finney were heard in a duet called "Lies." Mary Davidson then told how to keep air holes from cakes. Then Tom Huston announced a few members of his company, Mary Waddle told how to keep the hands lovely and white by using Ivory. Then Carl Smith was heard and he gave a talk on his plan for bigger and better prosperity. Several victrola records were heard. Irma Van Horn was accompanist. The program would have been left unfinished if singing and yells weren't given. Katherine Kingsbury led the class in several yells. Team rah, Smitty rah, Hyman rah, were given followed by Haynes rah for the Latin teacher, Miss Fannie K. Haynes.

PEP ASSEMBLY
The high school assembled in the auditorium Friday afternoon for a pep assembly "Dickey Bray," an official gave a short talk and then Katherine Kingsbury and Velda Jones with the pep squad on the stage, led the school in the school song and several yells.

THERE was a man who said, "Anyone who'd try to rob my home would get in debt, ha! ha!" And they got away with silver, two watches and a sum of money. Insure against thieves.

Perceval R. Piper, treasurer, Detroit, Mich., Mr. P. Bernard Young, Jr., editor of The Sphinx, Norfolk, Va. The meeting for 1932 will be held in St. Louis.

The student body was given a rare musical and vaudeville treat Friday afternoon when Miss Adelaide Hall, a noted vaudeville actress of New York, appeared on the stage in Galloway Hall and gave demonstrations of her work as a vaudeville performer. Miss Hall is on the RKO circuit and has been greeted by large crowds during this week in Dayton. Miss Hall was the leading star in the popular play, "Black Birds" during the season of 1931, under the management of Lew Leslie. On her trip to the school she was accompanied by Messrs. Carter and Young, who gave several musical selections.

"The Whole Town's Talking" is a play that is attracting the attention of the citizens and student body. It will be presented by the Wilberforce Players under direction of Mr. Mack M. Greene, Friday evening, January 22, in Galloway Hall. The play was written by two well known authors, John Emerson and Anita Loos. The story is centered around a middle-aged business man by the name of Henry Simmons. He, desiring to retire from his business and still keep it in the family, schemes to have his daughter marry his business partner, Chester Binney. The daughter is a modern college woman and the business partner has had a love affair with a famous movie queen named Letty Lythe. Believing this tale to be true the women of the whole town are talking about the affair. His stock, Chester's, went up a thousand points with the women only to fall back to zero again when the very movie actress the story was made around came to town bringing with her her fiance and expurgist. Then complications arose only to culminate in a terrible fight between Chester and the pugilist which ends to the amusement of everybody. You will be missing a real treat by not seeing this very interesting production. Those who will take the leading parts in the play are, Alan DeVeaux, Mr. Simmons; Marjorie Bean, Mrs. Simmons; Marjorie Winbush, Annie (Maid); Florence Carter, Ethel Simmons (Daughter), Dick Leubers, Chester Benny; Ann Jennings, Sadie Bloom; Rose Lee Loyd, Letty Lythe; D. V. Kyle, Mr. Donald Swift; Wm. Lathan, Mr. Roger Shield; Edith Moore, Sally; Bernice Spaulding, Lula.

The young men of Xi Chapter of the Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity were much elated over the winning of the McGee Cup awarded by the Lucius Lee McGee. This cup is awarded for the most efficient chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity for two years, to be retained by the chapter that wins it three times. It is shaped on the order of a silver loving cup having two handles and a bowl that would hold about two quarts and stands about eighteen inches high. The name of the donor is engraved on the outside and also the purpose for which it was donated.
